Security Is Tightest Ever Known

WASHINGTON (AP) — Up to 20,000 soldiers and police including out-of-town experts known for their ability to spot pickpockets, con men and psychopaths formed the tightest security today ever devised for the inauguration of an American president.

Focal point of the security was the stand in front of the Capitol set up for Richard Nixon's oath taking, the inaugural parade route from there to the White House and the presidential viewing stand on the sidewalk before the executive mansion.

Bulletproof glass protected the front of both the inaugural and viewing stands with flanking panes extending back diagonally to deflect shots from any angle.

Along the parade route man-hole covers were locked shut, roofs were cleared of all but uniformed personnel and every last building on both sides of broad Pennsylvania Avenue was barred to all but those with special passes, including permanent occupants.

Atop the inaugural and viewing stands, concealed from sight, special agents armed with automatic weapons scanned the throngs with wide-angle devices.

Other precautions included helicopters loaded with Secret Service agents hovering over the car carrying Richard M. Nixon and Lyndon Johnson to the Capitol and another patrolling several blocks to the side.

The 10,000 regular troops of the military district of Washington lined the two-mile parade route although they carried no weapons.

On duty throughout the city were 7,700 National Guardsmen, some downtown, others riding with city police in outlying areas.

Among more than 80 plain-clothesmen from out of town were chiefs of police from New Hampshire to California and 23 men from New York, Chicago and Philadelphia skilled in spotting such things as pickpockets and con men.

All 3,200 city policemen were on duty, plus 300 reservists on special assignment.

The security forces were armed with a list of thousands of potential trouble makers which includes the name of anyone who has ever written or spoken in public about killing a president or other high government official.

Mr., Mrs. WR to Get Award

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. and Mrs. Winthrop Rockefeller will receive the first annual Mrs. D. D. Terry award Saturday at the annual meeting of the Arkansas Council on Human Relations.

The award was established in honor of Mrs. Terry's achievements in education and cultural affairs.

75 passengers, including four men reportedly carrying machine guns.

Bound for Miami from Guayaquil, Ecuador, the prop-jet lost radio contact with its base soon after takeoff. Communications were restored when pilot Dean Ricker, an American citizen, landed at Barranquilla, Colombia, to refuel.

NAMED BY NIXON to serve as aides were Frank Shakespeare, left, who will head the U.S. Information Agency, and Mrs. Elizabeth Kooztz, to be director of the Women's Bureau of the Labor Department. Mrs. Kooztz is the President-elect's major Negro appointee in his administration.

leather Bibles open at the second chapter, fourth verse of Isaiah, which says:

"And he shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not list up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."

Thousands of antiwar demonstrators, who planned to picket the inaugural parade, put on a noisy preview Sunday.

The youthful protesters marched up Pennsylvania Avenue toward the Capitol shouting for a Viet Cong victory and calling Nixon a war criminal.

The march—whose ranks were made bizarre by many participants wearing ghoul-like theatrical masks with Nixon's likeness—was staged as the main act of the first mass inauguration protest in American history.

Police estimated the protest turnout at 5,000. A protest leader, David Dellinger who also was one of the leaders of demonstrations at the Chicago Democratic National Convention and at the Pentagon, said the marchers numbered 10,000 to 12,000.

The throng stretched six blocks, passing the citadels of government along Pennsylvania Avenue, snarling traffic and startling Republicans and tourists pouring in to see the festivities.

Tourists taking in the sights gaped at 150 or so protesters who, joining hands, did a swinging maypole dance around the Washington monument chanting "Ho, Ho, Ho Chi Minh; NFL is gonna win."

Nixon arrived in the Capital from New York about two hours after the demonstration got underway. But the Secret Service carefully routed his motorcade around the "counter-inaugural" parade.

Nixon got a standing ovation, punctuated with whistles and cheers, Sunday night as he made his first public inaugural appearance—at a Constitutional Hall concert.

Nixon, in a tuxedo, and his wife Pat wearing a flowing white gown, waved at the sellout crowd from their places in the Presidential Box.

Also in the box were Nixon's two daughters, Tricia, 22, and Julie, 20, along with Julie's husband, David Eisenhower, David's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Eisenhower and Nixon's 85-year-old aunt, Mrs. Jane Beeson of Whittier, Calif.

A huge American flag hung from the ceilings and the Nixons joined in singing the National Anthem as the concert began.

Washington hotels and motels were packed with out of towners arriving by car, plane, bus and train.

NIXON TEAM (from page one)

The Viet Cong's National Liberation Front proposed Saturday that the first session of substantive talks be held Tuesday. But Lodge said the U.S. response would have to await his arrival in Paris, and other officials in Washington doubted the talks could get under way so soon.

President Johnson's chief negotiator at the talks, W. Averell Harriman, flew to Washington Sunday and saw both Lodge and Johnson soon after his arrival.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky, supervisor of the South Vietnamese delegation, was expected back in Paris early this week. He had returned to Saigon before Christmas while the talks were deadlocked over the shape of a conference table.

A sense of urgency and activity pervaded all the delegations in the French capital.

In Washington, Harriman told his successor the stage has been set for "new and serious talks for a peaceful settlement" of the war in Vietnam.

Legislature Tests Feelings Back Home

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Members of the Arkansas Legislature reported to the Capitol for duty at 1:30 p.m. today to open the second week of their 60-day session.

The Arkansas House and Senate adjourned earlier than usual Friday for lack of business, and to test the feelings in their home districts about various bills.

Some of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's multimillion dollar tax program will be introduced in the House this week, but probably the most controversial proposal, a one per cent increase in the sales tax, will be withheld for several more weeks.

The legislators are expected to attempt to find other ways of raising additional state revenues before taking any action on the governor's sales tax and income tax proposals.

Drafts of the Rockefeller tax bills were placed on the legislators' desks Wednesday, and many of them said they would take advantage of the long weekend to study the drafts.

Rep. B. D. "Doug" Brandon of Little Rock said Saturday that at least $60 million in additional revenues annually would be necessary for even a modest increase in state services.

Brandon said that the tax proposals were being studied and noted that he and others were surprised to learn that the bulk of the income taxes were being paid by persons making between $5,000 and $12,000 annually.

Rep. Cal Ledbetter Jr. of Little Rock said that the proposed increase in income tax had a better chance of passage than the proposed one per cent increase in the sales tax.

Rep. Sterling R. Cockrill Jr. of Little Rock, appearing with other Pulaski-Perry county representatives at a meeting of the American Association of University Women, said that the General Assembly was "dedicated to emerging from this session without the label of obstructionist."

Search for Escapee Continues

BAUXITE, Ark. (AP) — Authorities continued their search today for Joe Broadway, 26, an escaped convict, who is charged with attempting to rob the Bauxite branch of the Benton State Bank Saturday.

Broadway was serving 20 years for twice robbing the same bank and for burglarizing it once when he failed to return to Tucker Prison Farm Dec. 29 from a Christmas furlough.

Arnold Moore, manager of the bank, recognized Broadway when the robber entered the building. He said Broadway walked up to the teller's cage, said "Hi," and then pulled a gun and demanded money.

Moore dropped to the floor and grabbed a .45-caliber pistol and began firing over the counter at Broadway. Max Skaggs, a bank guard armed with a carbine, also began to fire.

However, the gunman fled unharmed and without firing a shot, officers said. State Police counted at least 24 bullet marks in the bank windows, walls and floor of the building.

Officers said Broadway was believed to have gotten into a car with a woman and driven off. However, they were unable to find the car he reportedly escaped in, despite roadblocks and a search of the area.

Broadway is 5-foot-10, 165 pounds, with brown hair and eyes and numerous tattoos on his arms, officers said.

Community Theme of Rotary Meet

"If a community is worth working for, then its citizens should work for it," said Chamber of Commerce President George Frazier at the Hope Rotary Club's weekly luncheon meeting last Friday at the Town and Country. He emphasized Community Pride and lamented misplaced energy as demonstrated by some.

The new Chamber of Commerce President called attention to his four vice-presidents, Dr. Don Freil, Al Zimmerer, Hubert Thrash, and Jim Lockhart, who head projects committees that carry out the work of the Hope - Hempstead Chamber of Commerce. He told what is being done at the present time and pointed out some of the anticipated undertakings for the future.

Much of the latter is the result of a survey letter sent to many citizens asking for opinions and suggested improvements.

George Robinson arranged the program and introduced the speaker, President Harold Eakley led a discussion of further plans for Ladies Night and welcomed members and guests, Guy Grigg, retiring President of the Chamber of Commerce, and two from Cincinnati, O., Fred Kisro, General Manager of the Kroger Egg Department, and Hank Bradlock of the Process Foods Division of Kroger.

Light Rain Expected Over State

Light rain is expected to spread over Arkansas tonight and Tuesday.

A weak low pressure cell in the Texas Panhandle will trigger the light rains, which may begin in the south portions this afternoon.

"from inflated rhetoric that promises more than it could possibly deliver; from angry rhetoric that fans discontents into hatreds, from bombastic rhetoric that postures instead of persuading."

Nixon said "we cannot learn from one another until we stop shouting at one another."

At the same time, Nixon seemed to hint that portions of President Johnson's Great Society programs will be continued.

He promised to "pressurgently forward" toward such goals as rebuilding cities, providing better housing, strengthening education, protecting the environment and seeking full employment.

Citing his inaugural motto, Nixon said all must go forward together if any is to advance.

"No man can be fully free while his neighbor is not," he said.

"This means black and white together as one nation, not two," the President declared. "The laws have caught up with our conscience. What remains is to give light to what is in the law: to ensure at last that all are born equal in dignity before God, all are born equal in dignity before man."

Nixon's principal emphasis clearly was on the search for peace.

"For the first time, because the people of the world want peace and the leaders are afraid of war, the times are on the side of peace," he said.

To help make the world safe for mankind, he added, "is our summons to greatness."

As in the past, Nixon asserted that "after a period of confrontation, we are entering an era of negotiation. Let all nations know that during this administration our lines of communication will be open. We seek an open world—open to ideas, open to the exchange of goods and people, a world in which no people, great or small, will live in angry isolation."

Challenge by Reserves Turned Aside

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court turned aside today a challenge to the mobilization of Army reservists for Vietnam duty without a congressional declaration of war.

Justice William O. Douglas, in dissent, said the court had "become an agency for helping to create an awesome credibility gap."

He chastised his colleagues and said they "should construe laws as fulfilling, not breaking, promises made by this all-powerful government to its citizens."

A group of 113 reservists from the Cleveland area, most of them already in Vietnam, had posed the challenge.

They were mobilized under a 1966 law that gave President Johnson authority to call up reservists without a declaration of war or national emergency.

The men joined the reserves before the law was passed. Their agreements put a 45-day top on possible calls to active duty. Yet, when they were called up last spring, it was for up to two years.

Judgment in Insurance Case Upheld

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Supreme Court today affirmed a Faulkner County case in which an insurance company was held liable for damages in an automobile accident involving a son of Sen. Guy H. Jones Sr. of Conway.

The Commercial Standard Insurance Co. had claimed that the senator failed to comply with a provision of the policy which required a written statement concerning the accident.

The firm, however, was also ordered to pay attorneys' fees in excess of $400.

Obituaries

Attorneys for Teachers May Appeal

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Attorneys for six elementary teachers at Field Elementary School in the Gould School District are considering an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court a decision Friday by the U.S. Court of Appeals at St. Louis.

The appeals court ruled that Arkansas school officials have "absolute" power to dismiss teachers unless constitutional issues are involved.

The six teachers were not rehired by the Lincoln County School Board in 1967 because of alleged "incompetence and insubordination."

The teachers' suit alleged that the board had refused to rehire them because of their race and "the punitive motivation" of Horace Dalton, principal of Field School.

SHOWBEAT

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD—(NEA)—Years from now, they may talk about this scene as one of Alfred Hitchcock's classics. But to the actors who shot it, it was a two-day horror.

Hitchcock is directing "Topaz" at Universal. The script included a scene where the American delegation to an international meeting in Paris objects to the presence in the French delegation of a man they believe is a spy.

Hitch set the scene up for one of his trademark complicated shots. The hall where the meeting takes place is long and narrow, beautifully furnished with crystal chandeliers, tapestries on the wall, gilt columns and marble fireplaces.

Into the room come the delegations. The American group, headed by John Forsythe, spots the man they think is a spy (Michel Piccoli). Forsythe walks to the French group, pantomimes his objections. They shake their heads. He goes back to his own side, relays their refusal. Several times. He goes back and forth. Eventually, the French acquiesce and Piccoli angrily leaves the room.

This was all to be shot in one long take, from a camera on a truck crane. It was supposed to dolly back as the men came in, then zoom in on Piccoli's face as he is ordered out of the room. Everything had to be timed perfectly.

Hitchcock sat at the back of the studio, his arms folded over his stomach, his lower lip sagging in his perpetual pout, his sleepy eyes catching everything. Time after time, he relayed through one of his assistants the command. "Once again."

Behind the set, as the 17 men in the scene trooped out to regroup, they became increasingly more restive. It was dull, tiring work. There were no lines to say, merely the walk-in, the pantomiming, the standing around.

"This is one of those scenes," said John Van Dreelen, "when you hate being an actor. You go through it in a haze."

"Action," said the assistant director, and the door opened and they went in again. Once more, it was no good. The timing was a bit off.

Forsythe sang as he came back out. "Hi-diddle-de-de, an actor's life for me."

Piccoli said, "Next time, come with us. Change our luck."

They did it over and over. Just before they trooped back for one take, Forsythe said, "All right, men, one for the Gipper."

Before another take, he said, "This time, we'll do a Swedish version—naked."

Once, as they came out, Van Dreelen was muttering, "I love my profession. I love my profession. I love my profession." and the Frenchman, Piccoli, was muttering, "J'aime ma profession. J'aime ma profession. J'aime ma profession."

It was a scene they hated and loved at the same time—hated because of the grinding boredom of shooting it, loved because they knew it would be cinematically exciting. They feel the same way about Hitchcock.

"It he has something in mind," Van Dreelen said, "he'll shoot for a week, if necessary, until he gets what he wants. He is the perfectionist of all times. I never worked for him before, but it is an exhilarating experience."

Finally, after two days, it was done. The scene will last a little less than two minutes on the screen.

FASHION IN THE NEWS

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Whether it's rally stripes or flower decals for jalopies, the go-go generation puts its unique stamp on personal possessions. That goes for clothes, too, and you can bet it goes double for the hallmark of the teen years—the ubiquitous blue jeans.

Parents who once bleached their denim for a faded look or sewed school insignia patches in pockets in their teen years won't believe what their bewildering offspring are doing with denim.

Take the bleach bit. Just faded denim won't do it today. You've got to have a touch of Op Art when you fade the fabric. The real pro is the teen-ager who can come up with the leopard look in denim. And it takes a very judicious use of bleach to space the spots.

Luminous paint, bright colored felt and crazy daisies are used to gild the gold—or dude up the denim, if you will. A double row of bright red or yellow fabric tassels sewn on the outside seams gives a Latin-American flavor to denim.

And if you like jeans that jingle jangle, use rows of little round bells sewn to bright-colored fabric for side stripes.

The patient ones are teenagers who can sit for hours, 1.00.

The presidential party leaves the Capitol at 2:00, just in advance of the inaugural parade, and reaches the White House at 2:30.

President Nixon reviews the parade from outside the White House from 2:30 until 4:15 and then returns to the White House.

The Nixons leave the White House at 9:20 and, starting at 9:30, pay brief visits to inaugural balls at the Smithsonian Institution, the Shoreham, Sheraton Park, Washington Hilton, Mayflower and Statler Hilton Hotels.

The Nixons entertain friends at a White House reception, 10:30.

On Fashion Scene

Long pants and jeweled or embroidered vests are still the evening fashion scene. Satin, crepe, velvet or sequined pants with vests of brocade should be at the top of any party-goer's list.

These teen-agers from Larchmont, N.Y., have personalized their blue jeans. Susan Bunn chose the look of the leopard (left). Her faded jeans are now hot with cool navy spots. Using red, yellow, blue and green felt, Sara Pinney and Anne Gillespie (right) made flowers, signs, clocks and birds for the pantlegs of their denims.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

BEWARE OF BACHELORS

Dear Helen: I've watched this man operate for several years. The world has too many of this type. Let me describe him as a warning to husbands who have bachelor buddies:

He is the "truest friend" who can't do enough for his "buddy"—the unsuspecting husband.

Next he charms the kids. They begin to call him "uncle."

Now for the big job: Butter up the little wife. Give her the attention the husband overlooks. Be Mr. Helpful. Because the husband trusts his buddy, he allows many "alone" situations. The wife, meanwhile, has been artfully led to believe she is neglected. Oh, it takes "art" all right, to remain friends with a guy whose wife you are about to seduce.

Mission accomplished, the affair can go on right under hubby's nose. When the light dawns, it's exit for "buddy", and maybe curtains for the marriage. The woman is just another notch in this bachelor's belt. He then goes back to an "old faithful" who is waiting and hoping that someday he'll marry her—when he gets married women out of his system.

Do you think he ever will? — OLD FAITHFUL

Dear Old Faithful: . . . Only when his "system" no longer works, and then he'll be too old for anything but notch-counting. Before you become a much older "Faithful," lock the door on this wolf. — H.

Dear Helen: My husband and I have been married happily for two years. Then I got pregnant and he got mad and went home to his mother. It wasn't ALL my fault. How can I get him back? — P.J.L.

Dear P.: If I knew the story behind your words I might advise. All I can do is GUESS that a fight developed because your husband said "Damn!" instead of "Darling!" It's a perfectly normal reaction, darling, and he probably regretted it, but did you give him a chance to say so? Or did one temper lead to another?

A telephone call might bring him back, but don't expect HIM to make it. Men are stubborn that way. — H.

YOUR HELPING HAND DEPARTMENT

Dear Helen: My father, at 80, suffered a stroke, after being in almost perfect health. He spent 74 days in the hospital and rehabilitation is slow. He sits and watches for the mailman each day, and I would surely appreciate it if you would put his name and address in your column so that some of your kind readers would help him toward recovery.

He is: Mr. Bert Dyer, 3804 North Grace, Baldwin Park, Calif., 91706. Thank you very much. — E.B.

Dear Helen: This is not a problem but a plea to in-laws: Don't take advantage!

Soon after I married my husband I discovered I had not married one man but an entire family. I was suddenly beseeched to play chauffeur, seamstress, chef, secretary, psychiatrist, babysitter, and to loan out my personal belongings to them at any time. All those talents of which I had been so proud, suddenly became curses. Many nights I came home dead tired from work and had to go out on some task for my sisters-in-law, none of whom work outside the home. I've tried to teach them the things I can do, but they'd rather have me do them.

I've been able to stand this because I knew we'd be moving soon. Next month we're going to another state. Some girls aren't so lucky. — DOORMAT NO LONGER

Family of Agnew Likes Politics

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The rise of Spiro T. Agnew to the vice presidency has infected his family with an enthusiasm for politics that includes a relish for interviews and the capacity to overlook those who poke fun at the former Maryland governor, according to an aide.

The whole family has a keen sense of humor. They're not at all thin-skinned, fortunately," she said in an interview. "I don't think the publicity bothers them. They're a very down-to-earth family."

The Agnew family's liking for high-level politics was matched only by its adjustment to the fast-paced social life of the inauguration.

The new vice president, his wife Judy, their three daughters and one son plunged enthusiastically into the round of events that was capped Sunday by a reception where thousands of people surged into the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology for a glimpse of the family.

The social whirl presented the Agnews with one slight problem—finding suitable outfits for the women to wear during the inaugural events.

Vivacious Kim, one daughter, who with long blonde hair looks older than her 13 years, developed definite likes and dislikes about her clothes and didn't see anything she fancied until last Wednesday.

Mrs. Thompson, who is married to wagner's press man Hbr-05 t L. Thompson, delivered another last-minute item to daughter Susan, 21—a pillbox hat matching an olive green wool dress and coat.

Mrs. Agnew, daughter Pam, 25, son Randy, 22, and his auburn-haired wife Ann, had fewer problems with the inaugural trappings.

Saratoga Meet Won by Nashville

By RALPH ROUNTON
Star Sports Writer

Heading full steam toward meeting the Hope Lady Cats in a couple of weeks at district tournament, the Nashville Scrapperettes had to fight from behind in the second half before topping the Blevins Hornets 61-56 for the Saratoga Tourney championship last Saturday night.

Early in December Hope defeated the Scrapperettes 46-43, but the Nashville girls have come on strong since Christmas with big wins over Gurdon and Prescott. The Lady Cats face Nashville again in the first round of the 7-A championships at Gurdon in February.

Against Blevins, though, it took a monumental 51-point scoring binge by forward Kay McClure to lead Nashville to the victory. Shooting from outside, on the base line, or close to the basket, McClure burned the nets for 20 field goals and 11 of 13 free shots for her 51 points.

Still, it was foul trouble that kept the Hornets from pulling off an upset, though Blevins' record at 15-6 is about even with Nashville's 13-6. Leading 18-15 after a high-scoring first period, Blevins strode to an eight-point margin when McClure momentarily lost her range, and maintained at 33-27 lead at halftime.

By intermission, however, the Hornets had two forwards and a guard in foul trouble, and this factor proved to be the turning point at the end. The Scrapperettes only took two minutes to regain the lead at 38-37, and then Blevins lost Lou Turnage, who had scored 19 points, on fouls.

This loss allowed the Nashville guards to sag toward the goal without the threat of an outside shooter such as Turnage. Going into the final segment the Scrapperettes sat on a 46-43 cushion, but that didn't last long. Guard Sue White left the game on fouls with Nashville at 5:23 to play, and in the minute of transition to replacement Connie Exhols, Blevins jumped out front 54-52 at 3:58.

At this point the tide permanently turned, as offensive fouls and turnover shut off the Hornets and gave the title trophy to Nashville.

Aside from McClure's 51, Karen Shoner took the other 10 points while Jackie Jamison went scoreless. Cathy Montgomery popped 25, Turnage 19, and Janice Hugg 12 for the Blevins cause. Guards Janice Woodruff, Susan Shaddox, White, Echols did the defensive job for the Scrapperettes, while Blevins did quite well with Patsy Thurman, Loretta Cox, Debbie Jackson, and Pat Webb in the backcourt.

In the boys' final, the Genoa Central Dragons never trailed as they stopped the Mineral Springs Hornets 77-57.

Genoa jumped out to an 11-3 lead which reduced to 19-14 at the quarter, and Mineral Springs stayed within range at 33-24 by halftime. The Dragons took over for good in the third stanza, though, whipping out 22 points for a 55-42 lead. Gradually the difference increased to the end, with the Hornets unable to put forth a comeback.

Larry Plunt and Terry Cutshall led Genoa Central with 15 points each, and Leo Walker hit 13. Terry Bell and Jim Kever both sacked 13 for Mineral Springs, and Steve Clark added 11.

On the local scene, the Lady Cats and the "B" Lizards travel to Mineral Springs for a pair of games tomorrow night, before the Ladies begin action in the Gurdon Invitational on Wednesday evening at 7:40 p.m., against tough Delight.

This weekend brings the Bobcats back to 4-AA Western Division competition, as the Arkadelphia Badgers come to town on Friday night along with their junior boys, then the Cats and Bobkittens travel to Fairview to meet the undefeated and 5th ranked Cardinals on Saturday evening.

Ram QB Is Named Player of the Game

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Ram quarterback Roman Gabriel was named player of the game as the West All-Stars defeated the East 10-7 in the 19th National Football League Pro Bowl game.

But the honor could have gone to Chris Hanburger, or Don Brumm or even Dick Butkus. The ballots were given writers in the Coliseum press box late in the fourth quarter with the East holding a 7-3 lead. There were many nominations.

Then Gabriel drove the West to a late touchdown and Donny Anderson of the Green Bay Packers aided in the drive with key runs.

In unprecedented move, new ballots were passed out and writers got a second chance. Gabriel received 18 ballots and Anderson, who also had punts of 62 and 55 yards late in the game, got 16.

Oaks Visit to New York Is Pleasant

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The last time Oakland visited New York the Oaks lost the American Basketball Association's leading scorer Rick Barry. The Western Division leaders haven't lost anything since.

The Oaks made the trip to New York again Sunday and came away on a much more pleasant note. They whipped the Nets 116-105 for their 16th straight victory, an ABA record. And it was Oakland's ninth in a row since Barry was sidelined on Dec. 27 with a knee injury.

Oakland snapped the previous mark of 15 straight set by the Pittsburgh (now Minnesota) Pipers last year. In other ABA games, Miami crushed Los Angeles 145-120 and Denver smashed Dallas 111-88.

In the National Basketball Association, Detroit whipped Chicago 120-111, San Francisco nipped Philadelphia 98-97, Atlanta stopped New York 100-96, San Diego trimmed Phoenix 136-118 and Los Angeles beat Cincinnati 132-117.

Warren Armstrong, who popped in 30 points, led the Oaks, now 35-4. The Nets, who went down to their seventh straight loss, were led by Levern Tart with 28 points.

The Oaks led by only 96-92 with 7:35 to play, then spurred for 10 consecutive points to seal the victory.

Miami hit on 57 per cent of its shots en route to setting a team scoring record against the Stars. Les Hunter sparked the Floridians with 25 points. Merv Jackson had 19 for Los Angeles. Denver raced to a 54-38 halftime lead and Dallas never got closer than 10 points in the last half. Larry Joffe led the Rockets with 25 points while Ron Boone had 21 for Dallas.

In Saturday's play, Los Angeles outlasted Indiana 129-128 in overtime. Oakland turned back Minnesota 111-108, Kentucky trimmed Houston 112-102 and New Orleans whipped Dallas 124-108.

Hazzard's Cool Hand Chills Knicks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Walt Hazzard's cool hand chilled the New York Knickerbockers and kept the Atlanta Hawks ablaze in a battle between the National Basketball Association's two hottest clubs. Hazzard's 15-foot jumper with 20 seconds remaining clinched the Hawks' 100-96 victory over New York Sunday night. It was the surging Hawks' fifth straight victory and 18th in their last 20 games.

It was only the Knicks' second loss in their last 18 games and ended a six-game winning string.

In other NBA games Detroit stopped Chicago 120-111, San Francisco nipped Philadelphia 98-97, San Diego walloped Phoenix 136-118 and Los Angeles defeated Cincinnati 132-117.

Oakland tripped New York 116-105, Miami clobbered Los Angeles 145-120 and Denver thrashed Dallas 111-88 in American Basketball Association play.

The Knicks had rallied to within two points of Atlanta at 98-96 when Hazzard ice the victory. He had 15 points while Zelmo Beaty led the Hawks scoring with 21. Walt Frazier picked up 25.

Detroit saw an early 24-point lead dip to five after three periods when Dave Bing and Eddie Miles took over for the Pistons. Bing tossed in 11 points and Miles 10 to wrap up the victory. Miles led all scorers with 29 points while Bob Boozer added 21 for the Bulls.

Nate Thurmond snared 34 rebounds—a season high in the NBA—and added 35 points in leading the Warriors past the 76ers. Jeff Mullins hit a basket with 3:43 remaining for a 92-90 lead and the Warriors held on. Mullins added 26 points for San Francisco while Hal Greer had 23 for Philly.

San Diego exploded in the last quarter to whip Phoenix, with seven Rockets in double figures. Don Kojis led the parade with 26 points. Gail Goodrich had 29 for the Suns.

Elgin Baylor's 34 points and a furious fourth quarter led the Lakers over the Royals. Mel Counts chipped in with 23 points for the Lakers, who maintained a two-game Western Division lead over Atlanta. Tom Van Arsdale had 30 makers for the Royals.

In Saturday's action, Boston topped Seattle 111-97, New York downed Milwaukee 117-109 and Chicago outscored San Diego 107-102 in overtime.

Texas Wins State College Singles Meet

MAGNOLIA, Ark. (AP) — Clint Smith of Austin, Tex., won the open men's singles in the second annual Southern State College open badminton tournament here Saturday night.

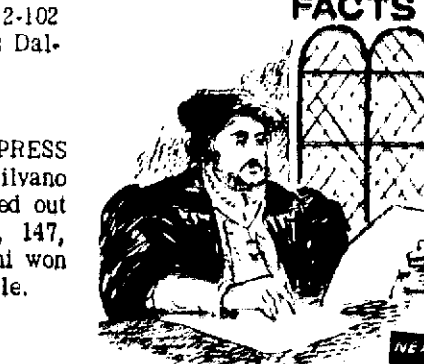

Smith defeated Bill Novack of Houston, Tex., 15-11, 15-12, in the American Badminton Association and International Badminton Federation sanctioned tournament.

In the open women's singles, Betty Brown of Tulane University defeated Virginia Hicks of Texas Women's University, 11-3, 11-6.

Bill Holbrook of Dallas, Tex., and Smith defeated Dan Kampman and Harold Clark, both of Dallas, 15-11, 7-15, 15-12 in the men's doubles.

In the open women's doubles, Miss Hicks and Fran Matula of TWU defeated Elma Ronea of Memphis State and Virginia Anderson of Memphis, Tenn., 15-12, 18-15.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Although Miles Coverdale's version was the first English translation of the entire Bible to be printed (1535), it was the unfinished translation of his contemporary, William Tyndale, which prevailed. The World Almanac notes Tyndale translated from the original Hebrew and Greek texts into the vernacular English of his day. Some 60 per cent of the King James New Testament Bible was derived from his translation.

Dawson Leads West in AFL Star Game

By ORLO ROBERTSON
JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—

Len Dawson, 12 years a pro but overlooked by all of the American Football League coaches except his own, succeeded where youth failed as the West came from far back to defeat the New York-dominated East 38-25 in the league's annual All-Star game.

Although he topped the league in average yards gained during the regular season, the 33-year-old National League reject from Kansas City was overlooked by the coaches in favor of San Diego's 28-year-old John Hadl in their selection of the West's All-Star team.

But Hank Stram, coach of the West, lost no time correcting the error. He selected his Chiefs' quarterback as a member of the squad and it proved a smart move Sunday as the West chalked up its fourth All-Star victory against two defeats before a rainy day crowd of 43,800.

Dawson replaced Hadl in the second half with the East leading 19-3 chiefly because of the passing and the smart signal calling of New York's Joe Namath, the league's Most Valuable Player. Broadway Joe completely overshadowed Hadl, who was far off in his passing. The picture quickly changed as Bob Griese of Miami and Dawson became rival quarterbacks in the second half. Still the East led 22-13 going into the final period.

New York's Jim Turner kicked the last of his six field goals early in the final quarter to lengthen the margin to 25-13 but that ended the East's scoring as Dawson took complete charge with assists from three comparative youngsters—Jim Lynch, Floyd Little and Paul Robinson, the league's No. 1 rookie from Cincinnati.

Bruins Extend Win Streak to 11 Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Phil Esposito and the Boston Bruins are in mid-winter orbit. John Muckler and the Minnesota North Stars are in eclipse.

Esposito, the National Hockey League's top scorer, set up one goal and tallied his 29th of the season Sunday as the sizzling Bruins extended their unbeaten streak to 11 games with a 5-3 victory over Toronto.

Muckler lost the Minnesota coaching job he had held for 2½ dark months after the North Stars bowed to St. Louis 3-1.

In Sunday night action, Philadelphia upended Detroit 1-1 and Oakland whipped Pittsburgh 6-3. The bruising Bruins shrugged off Toronto's challenge on their period goals by Fred Stanfield and Ed Westfall to take a four-point East Division lead.

Esposito, driving to become the first 100-point scorer in NHL history, set up Bobby Orr's 13th goal and then shot Boston ahead 2-1 in the opening period. Ron Murphy also scored for the Bruins while Paul Henderson hit for two Maple Leaf goals.

Czech Riots Are Led by Students

By FRANK CREPAU
Associated Press Writer
PRAGUE (AP) — Spurred by the death of Jan Palach, Czech students talked today of strikes and mass meetings to pressure their leaders into standing up to the Soviet occupiers.

Palach died Sunday, three days after he set himself afire in a protest that electrified the nation. Many Czechs said his act of sacrifice affected the country more than anything since the Soviet invasion five months ago.

"We have new courage, a new symbol," said one young man who had placed a candle in Wenceslas Square, where the 21-year-old student drenched himself with gasoline and set himself aflame.

The country's Communist leaders tried to prevent a new crisis that could bring a new Soviet crackdown. They faced the threat of another student becoming a human torch to protest the loss of freedoms since the invasion and of the growing gap between the leadership and the public.

Speakers at rallies and on radio and television asked that there be no more human sacrifices. Another student who talked with Palach three hours before he died said in a broadcast that Palach told him: "My act has fulfilled the purpose but let nobody else do it... Let the living make their efforts in the struggle. I say goodbye. We may still see each other."

Karel Kovanda, a representative of the student union in Bohemia and Moravia, told a rally the students will act, but "we have to choose acts which will be adequate to Jan Palach."

Students passed the word for a mass meeting in Prague's Old Town Square and chanted "Strike" on streetcars and on shop windows in Wenceslas Square.

They tried to line up support from the workers. University departments in Prague were in a state of emergency.

The country's top leaders, including party chief Alexander Dubcek, sent a telegram to Palach's mother saying they were "deeply moved" by his death. "The sacrifice of your son Jan is a tragic event on our common path," they declared.

The government radio and television stations reported extensively on his death and the reaction to it. There were appeals for calm, and demonstrations in the streets were restrained. Some students marched to Prague Castle, shouted, "Russians go home!" a few times and departed.

A candlelight procession moved slowly through the streets Sunday night. Candles lined the ledges and steps in front of the statue of St. Wenceslas, and young people took turns throughout the night holding the national flag at the statue.

In front of the National Museum fountain where Palach set himself afire Thursday a wreath, dozens of candles and a black flag were placed.

A second tent was set up nearby as three workers and four students joined a hunger strike started by a pair of students on Saturday. They were to fast until Tuesday, the fifth monthly anniversary of the Soviet invasion and the day when Palach's suicide note said another student would burn himself.

Heavy police patrols guarded the Soviet command's headquarters in Prague.

Government officials met with student leaders and Czech Premier Stanislav Ruzi urged the students to "submit their concrete demands" to the government.

Palach demanded abolition of censorship and banning of Zpravy, the propaganda sheet distributed by the Soviet occu-

Backing for University System Bill

By TOMMY YATES
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Rep. Leon Holsted of North Little Rock said Sunday he has received "very favorable" comments on his bill that would make the state colleges and universities part of a coordinated state university system.

Under Holsted's bill, each institution would retain its existing board of trustees to administer the institution, but the state Commission on Co-ordination of Higher Educational Finance would determine the curriculum at each school.

The commission also would submit to the legislature a single budget for the whole university system. The commission presently can make only recommendations to the legislature and the governor concerning the financing of the colleges and universities.

Holsted said he has not heard from any of the college and university presidents of the eight state-supported schools.

However, he said, "I feel they could" look favorably on the bill. Holsted said he did not expect to hear from the presidents until the bill comes up in the House Education Committee.

Holsted said he planned to check today with Rep. Ode Maddox of Oden, the committee chairman, about when he wants to bring the bill up. Holsted said he expected Maddox to call for a public hearing on the measure.

MOVIEGOERS' CHRONICLE: Movie going increases steadily with level of education. The 16-24 age group is most frequent in attendance. Seventy per cent of television movie viewers feel they have been cheated by the "edited" version and the frequent commercials. Almost all feel "greater involvement" in a theater... intimacy, darkness, mood, wide screen, sharing, surroundings and people all hyp up the sensitivity of the individual. Also a factor was the rebash. Many enjoy the social discussions that follow a mutually viewed motion picture. Half the population never goes to the movies! The Motion Picture Association revealed all of above in a special survey just completed. Also found out that television is the most potent force with which the movie industry must concern itself. New worries for theater owners and operators: wide screen television at home, community antennae television (CATV) with excellent home reception, the specter of pay television on a wire web across the nation plus recent FCC decisions encouraging "program origination" on the part of CATV setups. The answer for the movie makers, distributors and exhibitors has to be quality and lots more of it!

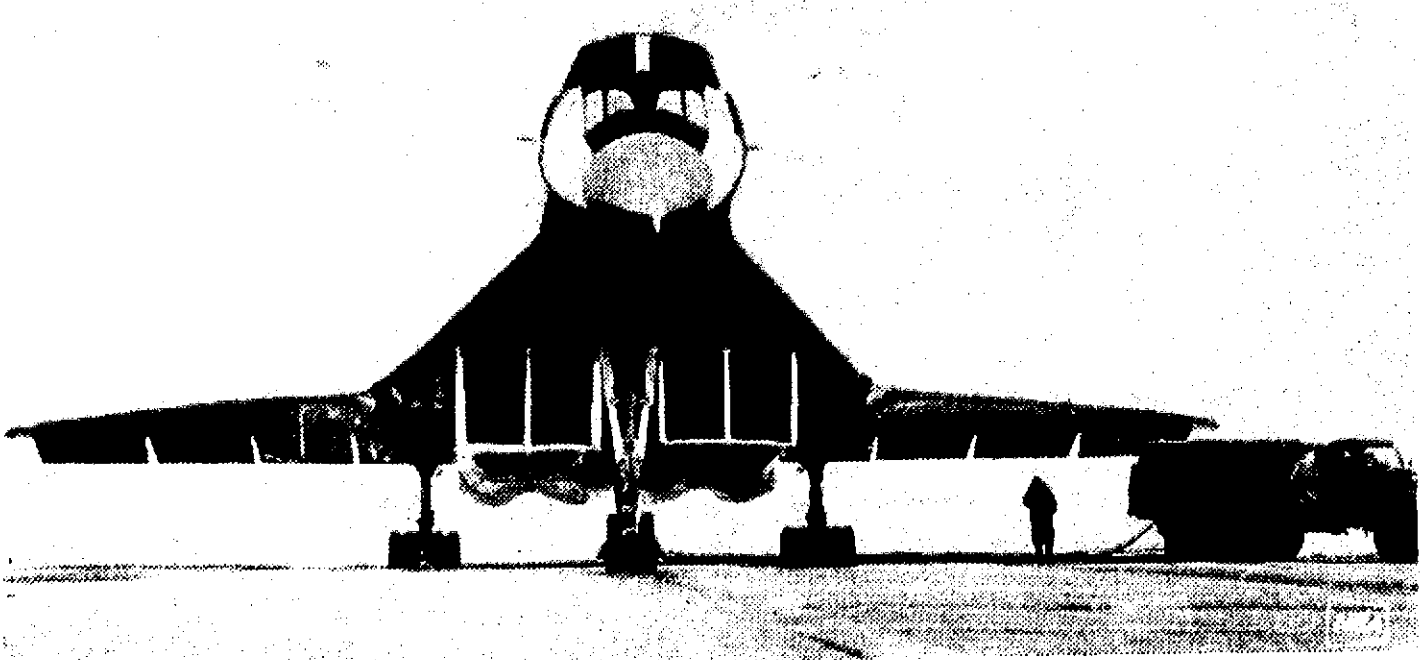

MUSIC FLASH: Look for "Soulshake" to crack the Top 40 big, big. Peggy Scott and Jo Jo Benson have an album that is loaded with winners. It's a Nashville arrow aimed at Motown dominance and it's in the heart of the target. It's exactly what it says "Soulshake." You gotta dance when you hear it.

HOROSCOPE INTELLIGENCE: Are summer-born smarter than spring- or winter-born people? A University of Wisconsin research program says "no." Standard intelligence and personality tests failed to show any difference in level of intelligence related to birth date! Whew!

LORE OF YORE: An old remedy for warts was to say prayers backwards. Some modern day experts contend El Greco's style was due to defective eyesight. In some areas of this country a baby was "assured" of long life by being passed around a table leg three times.

VIOLENT GIRLS: Big trouble. "Social skills" still aren't up to coping with the violent urge that remains in women despite all of the historical "weaker sex," "gentler sex" identification. Child beatings are a serious national problem. The blunt weapon of "repression" is society's main weapon to keep the cool. Girls don't have contact sports, don't have enough competitive outlets, don't compete in enough boy-girl athletics, according to many leading psychologists.

They say violence is a norm and not a deviation from it. Anyone heard of hair pulling and eye scratching lately?

LIKE A HUGE BIRD, with its lowered nose serving as beak, Russia's supersonic jetliner, the TU-144, squats on a runway in Moscow. The plane reportedly has a top speed of more than 1,500 miles an hour, twice the speed of sound.

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Address letters to: Editor The Star, P.O. Box 648, Hope, Ark. 71801.

All letters must be signed, with address, so you are identified to the newspaper staff, but if the character of the letter permits we will allow use of a pen-name in the publication, in which case you should add "Citizen," or some other word below your real name and address.

Pen-names are permitted when a letter deals only with issues. Direct attacks upon public officials, however, must bear the writer's name for publication.

WE AGREE

Editor The Star: Your column "Our Daily Bread" in the Hope Star Jan. 16 was just letter-perfect as to my regards toward a four-year term for county officials.

An elected official with a two-year term must yield to pressures from selfish individuals because of his inward fear of having to run again next year. With a four-year term a man has a chance to prove himself, and at the end of his term may take out gracefully or moved out by the will of the people.

Incidentally, I was connected with the Van Buren Press-Argus for 33 years, and have followed your editorials and comments, many times reprinted in The

Desalting Plant Aid for Israel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Levi Eshkol says President Johnson has asked the U.S. Congress to approve a multimillion-dollar aid plan for an Israeli plant to make sea water drinkable.

The proposal calls for a $40 million grant and an $18 million long-term loan. It would allow the Israelis to decide whether to use nuclear or conventional power.

Eshkol said Sunday Johnson told him of the recommendation in a reply to a farewell message sent by Eshkol to the outgoing President.

The desalination plant, which first was suggested during the Eisenhower administration, would produce some 40 million gallons of drinking water a day to help meet the water needs that have plagued Israel since its founding.

In the diplomatic effort to resolve the Arab-Israeli conflict, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad summoned the French and Soviet ambassadors in Cairo Sunday to tell them his government considers that the U.S. reply to the Soviet proposal for a Middle East settlement had a "completely pro-Israeli and misleading tone."

The Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram, which often reflects the thinking of President Gamal Abdel Nasser, said the reply was President Johnson's "final and worst possible offense against the Arabs." It said Johnson was trying to commit incoming President Nixon "before his new administration could have any chance of taking an unbiased look at the Mideast."

According to mythology, the father of Daphne changed her into a laurel tree to protect her from Apollo.

WHAT YOUNG AMERICA IS DOING

The largest share of America's young adult population is in school. Only a very small percentage of both men and women is truly unemployed—not in school or the armed forces and actively looking for work but unable to find it. The "other" group includes those in institutions, abroad or otherwise out of the major classifications.

SPENDING

Young adult spending accounts for a significant chunk of the national economy—$40 billion last year, much of it earned in part-time jobs. On top of the $40 billion in direct spending by 18-24 year olds, parents also put out a considerable amount for clothes, food and other upkeep.

STARTING SALARY

Starting salaries are getting better and better for young adults with college degrees. They have climbed an average of 45 per cent for major professional categories in the past eight years, compared with a 30 per cent average increase for assembly line jobs and a 17 per cent increase in consumer prices over the same period.

This is it! "Fury was actually fear. 'You sit there! I'll sit here! Maybe we'll get home alive."

One look told the late Curtains for Jon Vicki spread the word. The following week was rough.

Sunday morning's news flash was worse. Young driver crashed into family of four. Lone survivor—Vicki.

Who can say what happened? I do know she could make any man lose control.

God hasn't answered prayers. Two years later Vicki still lies in a coma. Not dead. Not alive.

Emotion in motion can be a date with death. Always Be Cool.

From Annellen Strong 21 of the College of Our Lady of the Elms, Chicopee, Mass., came the second prize winner.

Singing down the highway still having the time of our lives. The screaming radio keeping time with laughter. One two three the beat of the music ticked out the time I raced to kill and with each pulse the reminder of four five six broken curbs or six.

"Who are you waiting for?"
"My wife, she's late for everything!"

"Look, Vicki. I can't drive when . . ."
"Jon-n-n!" she cooed, as we skidded around a curve. "Don't you like me?"
"I do, but . . ."
"So?" she snuggled nearer.

A car with brights swung over a hill. For a wild bit a row of guard rails were in jeopardy.

I stopped the car.

president since Henry Wallace in 1940 that did not serve in Congress.

Agnew selected Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen to administer the oath, using his daughter Pamela's Bible opened to the 100th Psalm, which reads, in part, "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord."

Agnew, in an inaugural news conference, said he looks forward to tackling the problems of urban America and indicated he would have a major announcement about those problems in America's largest city soon.

"I recently had a long talk with New York City Mayor John Lindsay," Agnew told his first news conference in several weeks, "and we will have an important announcement about that later."

Agnew said he would primarily devote his energies to problems of the cities, but he said he hoped to move gradually into foreign policy matters.

Agnew said the inaugural ceremonies are more than a celebration of the accomplishments of any one man. "It is a rededication to our highest ideals of government. Only in the United States is the transfer of power done with such lucidity and with so little rancor."

The son of a Greek restaurateur, Agnew grew up during the depression in which he watched his father's business fail. At one point in young Agnew's helped his father sell vegetables on the streets of Baltimore.

Agnew originally had planned to take the oath of office on a 40-pound Bible used by the first governors of Maryland. The Bible is now in St. Ann's Episcopal Church in Annapolis, Md. Plans to use it were canceled when it was determined that the 262-year-old Bible was too fragile to move.

Agnew graduated from a Baltimore public high school in 1937 and entered Johns Hopkins University as a chemistry major.

After three years, he transferred to the University of Baltimore law school.

While there he met a secretary named Elinore Isobel (Judy) Judefind. They were married in 1942.

Agnew saw action in the Battle of the Bulge and won four battle stars, the Bronze star and the Combat Infantry Badge as a Army officer.

He earned his law degree in 1946 and as his practice grew he devoted more and more time to civic activities, becoming Baltimore County Executive in 1962.

Agnew's selection as a runningmate by Nixon surprised most political observers. He told a news conference shortly after Nixon announced his choice that he was aware that the name, Spiro Agnew, was "not exactly a household word."

But as the campaign progressed and the outspoken Agnew made the headlines with various off-the-cuff statements, in addition to his campaign speeches, he became familiar to the American people.

On the inaugural stand with Agnew and his wife, Judy, were his children, Pamela, his son Randy, Susan, and Kim.

Nixon Phones Former Boss Eisenhower

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon telephoned former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Sunday night and said he was embarrassed when his former boss told him he won't be calling him Dick any more.

Nixon spent about 15 minutes on the telephone with the man he served as vice president.

"This is the last time I can call you Dick for a while," Eisenhower was quoted as saying to Nixon, sworn in as 37th president today.

"That is very, very embarrassing for me," Nixon replied. Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler reported that segment of the conversation but said the rest of their talk was private.

Eisenhower is at Walter Reed Army Hospital convalescing after suffering a series of heart attacks.

40th Anniversary;
Star Readers to Be
Polled on Taxes

Married men are upbraided by their wives on forgetting a wedding anniversary—but old bachelors forget anniversaries too.

Flowers from First National Bank Saturday, Jan. 18, reminded me that the date was the 40th anniversary of the present ownership of Hope Star. The late Clyde E. Palmer of Texarkana and I bought two local dailies and consolidated them as Hope Star in the issue of Jan. 18, 1929. It's an enduring corporate partnership indeed that lasts for 40 years, but management never deserves the whole credit—Hope, being a stable and friendly town, deserved a good newspaper, was willing to support one, and so, we say unblushingly, built The Star up to what it is today.

Thanks from yours truly and all 16 of The Star's staff.

In tomorrow's edition we will publish a public opinion poll in which you will be asked to vote on the tax-increase proposals Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller has laid before the legislature.

Please vote YES or NO on all questions and mail or bring your completed ballot to The Star office.

The ballot is addressed jointly to your editor and Rep. Talbot Feild, Jr., but both the idea and the text of the ballot (based on the governor's text) originated with Mr. Feild.

As Rep. Feild explains in his introductory letter tomorrow, members of the Congress have mail franking and other privileges which enable them to find out quickly and cheaply how their constituents feel about a public question—but members of the General Assembly, in the absence of communication privileges, have to ask special help in sounding out public opinion on merely state-wide issues.

Rep. Feild has asked us for this help, amounting to approximately a full free page in the newspaper—and we are giving it to him even if we have to expand the size of the edition to do so.

As a matter of fact it will total two full pages, for Mr. Feild wants the questionnaire published at least twice to assure the fullest public notice.

We are able to do this without too great a production expense because our new offset plant permits us to merely photograph Mr. Feild's material without the expensive business of turning it into old-style metal type.

In return, please take the time to mark the ballot's various questions and see that the completed document is delivered to The Star, which will turn all ballots over to your state representative.

Three Persons Killed on State Roads

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Only three persons were killed on Arkansas highways during the weekend, according to an Associated Press count.

Killed Sunday was Loyd Perkins, 22, of Mansfield. Police said he apparently lost control of his car, which left the highway and overturned four times.

The other victims were killed Saturday in a two-car collision. They were Michael McCoy, 18, and Bobby Newsom, both of Leachville.

Minister May Support Drink Bill

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — State Sen. Jim Caldwell of Rogers, a Church of Christ minister, says he may support the administration's local option mixed drink bill.

Caldwell, 32, the only Republican in the Arkansas Senate, said Saturday that he was "wrestling with the problem and hadn't reached a final decision."

Caldwell said as a minister he is a dry and would vote dry in an election. He said that as a legislator, he does not want to deprive the people of the right to vote in their district and county.

U.S. Bases, Installations Are Blasted

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Four U.S. bases and a dozen South Vietnamese installations were hit Sunday night by stepped-up attacks which Saigon officials considered a demonstration of enemy determination to fight as well as talk in Paris.

Military spokesmen said eight Americans were killed, 35 were wounded and nine helicopters were slightly damaged by mortar fragments in hit-and-run attacks on four U.S. outposts northwest, north and south of Saigon. The attackers left behind bodies the U.S. Command said.

South Vietnamese headquarters said mortar and rocket attacks on 12 government camps and subsector headquarters inflicted only light casualties. But on Saturday night there were 20 shelling, sabotage incidents and terror raids in which 10 South Vietnamese soldiers and eight civilians were killed and 18 government troops and 85 civilians wounded.

The stepped-up enemy attacks began a few hours after the first session of the four-party peace talks in Paris Saturday, and a government spokesman said the two obviously were connected. More than a million South Vietnamese troops across the country were placed on full alert Sunday because of the increased enemy activity, but a U.S. spokesman has no change in the status of American troops.

"We're maintaining the same degree of operational readiness we normally do," he said. "We show no enemy threat to Saigon at this point."

U.S. air cavalrymen sweeping near the Cambodian border and two of the American installations that were attacked seized more than four tons of ammunition, including 132,000 small arms and machine-gun bullets and 300 mortar rounds.

U.S. intelligence officers said a few captured documents indicated the enemy planned a massive winter-spring offensive to coincide with the presidential inauguration in Washington. But they discounted them because the documents gave conflicting starting dates going back to last Dec. 13.

U.S. military sources in Saigon also discounted intelligence estimates from Washington that infiltration of North Vietnamese troops into South Vietnam increased heavily in the last two months. The Saigon sources said such infiltration was "up slightly, but it isn't enough to change the current situation."

Some authorities in Washington said infiltration had increased from about 7,000 North Vietnamese troops a month to possibly 20,000.

Demonstrators Hold Own Inauguration and Nixon Is Big Target

By JOHN VAN GIESEN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — A young man clutching a Dominican Republic passport hurdled another passenger and ran "like a football player, dodging from tourist to first class" before grabbing a stewardess and forcing an Eastern Airlines jet to Cuba. It was one of two hijackings Sunday that took 257 persons to Havana.

The Eastern jet—hijacked as it neared the end of its New York-to-Miami flight—and all but one of its 188 passengers flew on to Miami during the night.

An Ecuadorian prop-jet carrying 81 persons was seized by four men armed with submachine guns and remained in Cuba. There was no explanation why Cuban authorities, who cite safety in refusing to allow hijacked jets to leave with passengers aboard, detained the smaller prop-jet.

These were the sixth and seventh commercial airliners hijacked to Cuba in 18 days. Another airliner was hijacked to Egypt.

Most passengers on the Eastern jet returned to Miami early today aboard two prop-jets sent to Varadero, Cuba, to get them. They told newsmen the young hijacker had given no indication that he planned to seize the plane before leaving his seat and garbling stewardess Pamela Gates of Syracuse, N.Y.

"He had to jump over me, and he kicked me," said Gladys Scheck of New York City. She sat next to the hijacker and spoke to him briefly. "He just told me he came from Santo Domingo."

Another passenger, Charles Suskind of Brooklyn, N.Y., said

Raid Leaves 3 German Soldiers Dead

BONN, Germany (AP) — Three West German soldiers were killed and two others seriously injured in a raid by unknown persons on a West German army munitions depot today, the Defense Ministry announced.

A defense spokesman said it was not known yet whether arms or munitions were taken. The raid occurred at Lebach, southwest of Saarbrücken, near the French border.

The spokesman said the dead and wounded men were sentries who were found when their relatives reported for duty this morning. The relief guards found a scene of devastation and telephones had been destroyed, apparently to delay the alarm.

LBJ Leaving Office After 32 Years

By MARTHA COLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While Richard M. Nixon stands in the spotlight today as the nation's 37th President, Lyndon Baines Johnson quietly leaves the national capital, a private citizen for the first time in 32 years.

The plans called for Johnson, after escorting Nixon to the Capitol for the oath-taking ceremonies, to have a quiet lunch with outgoing Defense Secretary Clark Clifford and then fly on an Air Force plane to his ranch in Texas.

While Johnson has said he has looked forward to exchanging the 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. address of the White House for Ranch Road No. 1, Johnson City, Tex., his last days in office as 36th President have been filled with sentiment and expressions of good will.

"I'm leaving this town with nothing but gratitude and love in my heart," he said.

The Johnson family, leaving the White House for the last time as residents about 11:10 a.m. EST, first join the motorcade that will carry Nixon to the capitol for the oath taking ceremony.

Leaving with him were his wife Lady Bird, their two married daughters, Lynda Robb and Luci Nugent, and grandchildren, 18-month-old Lyn Nugent and 3-month-old Lucinda Robb.

True to form, Johnson spent Sunday, his final full day as President, working for hours in his office cleaning up some final details.

He went to church in the morning. The Marine Corps band came by later to serenade him while the Johnsons stood on a balcony.

During the church service, the minister read a prayer written by Johnson in which he asked God to "deliver us from the follies of power and pride."

"Show us the uses of our strengths that will make life better on this earth for all Thy children. In season and out, help us to hold to the purpose Thou has taught us, feeding the hungry, healing the sick, caring for the needy, trusting our young, training them up in the way that they should go."

Johnson urged the Lord to help the nation rid itself of bigotry, hate and violence, especially in Washington, D.C.

"Watch over his city and keep it from strife and sorrow," he wrote.

The differences, the criticisms, seem to have melted these last few days in the mellowness of goodbyes.

It's like the signs on the backs of the city buses—"Farewell and Best Wishes, President Lyndon B. Johnson."

Declares Ray Innocent of Killing King

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The director of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference's nonviolent education and direct action wing says James Earl Ray is innocent of murdering Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. But he isn't saying what evidence he has.

At a news conference Sunday, the Rev. James Bevel said, "I won't discuss the specific evidence now because it wouldn't be beneficial to James Earl Ray. But he's not guilty."

Bevel, 32, a former liaison officer between SCLC and militant Negro groups, sent a telegram to Ray Saturday which read:

"I would like to inform you that I would be very happy to take your case without fee, I was present on April 4 at the Lorraine Motel when Dr. King died—you have been accused of murdering him. Of course, I know you are not guilty."

King, who headed the SCLC, was shot to death in Memphis, Tenn., last April 4. Ray was arrested in London following an intensive manhunt and extradited to Memphis where he faces trial beginning March 3.

Bevel said he didn't step up with his alleged information sooner because "I hadn't been responsive to him."

Richard Nixon Becomes 37th President of a Nation Hit by Troubles

World Must Have Peace, Nixon Says

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon launched his administration today, declaring "the times are on the side of peace" and history beckons America "to help lead the world at last out of the valley of turmoil."

In the text of his inaugural address from the steps of the Capitol, Nixon said that at home the nation faces "a crisis of the spirit" and needs an answer of the spirit.

"We have found ourselves rich in goods but ragged in spirit; reaching with magnificent precision for the moon, but falling into raucous discord here on earth," he said.

The chief executive said the answer to the crisis will be found in such simple virtues as "goodness, decency, love, kindness."

In these difficult years, America has suffered from a fever of words," Nixon contended.

Nixon Team in Paris for Peace Talks

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — The Nixon administration's first team for the Vietnam peace talks began arriving in Paris today, and the four delegations were expected to get down to business before the end of the week.

Lawrence Walsh, who will replace Cyrus R. Vance as the U.S. delegation chief, was due tonight from Washington.

Walsh said on his arrival there are elements of optimism in the coming negotiations to end the war. But "the timing of it may be difficult," he added.

"It would be wrong to minimize the difficulties ahead," Walsh told newsmen at Orly Airport. "Everyone realizes we have made a good start, but everyone also realizes that there is a great deal more to be accomplished. It seems to me the elements are here for optimism, but the timing of it may be difficult."

310,000 Live in Pulaski Co.

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Pulaski County's population has reached a record 310,000, the Metropolitan Area Planning Commission of Pulaski and Saline Counties estimated Saturday.

The estimated increase in Pulaski County's population since the 1960 federal census is about 67,020. The one-year increase was 3,400 for 1968.

In outlying areas of the capital armed National Guardsmen patrolled with city police. Mingling in the downtown crowds were plainclothes experts from Chicago, New York and Philadelphia.

From a hospital bed a scant three miles from the inaugural scene, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower sent a message urging his countrymen to unite behind the man who served him as vice president for eight years.

"The nature of the next four years is in the hands of all the people," said Eisenhower who is making a slow recovery at Walter Reed Army Hospital from his seventh heart attack.

"No longer are we partisans in a presidential campaign," said Eisenhower. "Now we are Americans together."

The 77-year-old general, stricken by his last attack just hours after urging the Republican National Convention to nominate Nixon, ended his message with Nixon's inaugural theme:

"Forward together."

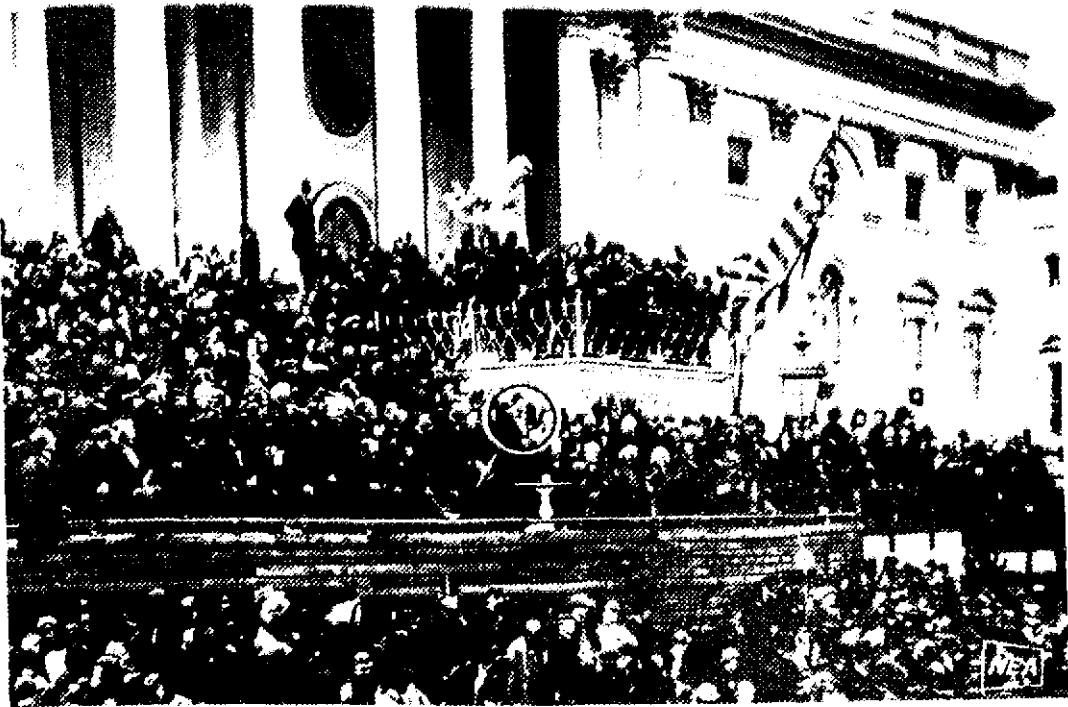

The two inaugural Bibles, held one atop the other by Mrs. Nixon, are family heirlooms dating to 1828 and 1873.

styles have changed over the years. In 1828, Andrew Jackson's overenthusiastic supporters left the White House a shambles. Soldiers stood guard on rooftops as Abraham Lincoln took the oath of office. A colorful but orderly celebration is what enthusiastic volunteers manning Richard Nixon's inaugural headquarters have in mind for 1969.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Mrs. Bernice Robertson goes to the office at 8 a.m. (sometimes earlier) and works until 5:30 p.m. (usually later). In addition, she often works weekends.

All this for no pay. Mrs. Robertson is one of some 3,000 workers in the bustling, Nixon-Agnew presidential inauguration headquarters—Washington's newest bureaucracy and its most short-lived.

"We're a bureaucracy all right," said one inaugural committee chairman, thumbing through forms filled out in triplicate. "But we're one of the few that folds up when the job is done."

Planning an inauguration is big business these days. Preparations involve thousands of people plus the use of such modern technology as computerized invitation listing.

"It was decided to use computers to avoid mistakes like the one in 1961 when one man got five invitations to the inaugural ball," said Ann Foster, a volunteer in the invitations department. "People are offended by things like that."

There are the inevitable committees—26 major ones in all, plus numerous lesser groups, ranging from the Committee on Grandstands to the Subcommittee on Sale of Souvenir License Plates.

The computers, the committees, the corporate appearance may be the result of lessons in history. Chaos is no stranger to what should be the solemn dignity of the installation of a president.

In the first inaugural ball held in the capital, for example, a crisis in housing preparations in 1801 caused one hotel to be so overcrowded that windows were broken out to improve ventilation.

By Grant's second inaugural foresight had improved. All of this, the inaugural committee insists, "doesn't cost the taxpayer one cent." The Washington business community puts up some of the money, and sale of tickets to the ball, concert, gala, and parade cover the rest of the costs and usually leave a surplus that is donated to charity.

This year's planners promise "the gayest, most glamorous inaugural ball in American history" and a memorable inauguration, lined at least commendable for their enthusiasm.

Not even the threat of a New Left counter-inauguration demonstration can dim the enthusiasm of the small army of planners that has taken over the old Pension Building to prepare for the big weekend. Work goes on seven days a week, most of it by part-time volunteers who exhibit all the bubbly zeal of a decorations chairman for a high school prom.

There's a whole new generation coming in that has never seen an inauguration and ball chairman Evans. Everybody working on it is just going for it.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Some of the color in Washington's upcoming inaugural weekend may be provided by people the new administration would just as soon stayed home.

Peace groups plan "counter-inauguration" ceremonies to dramatize their demands to "end the war and black repressing."

Demonstrators will line the parade route, although New Leftist Rennie Davis said if a permit is granted they would prefer to cluster in a predesignated spot to display their placards. During inauguration ceremonies they intend to stage their own "in-hog-uration," installing the pig offered in nomination by the Yippies in Chicago.

Also planned is a "counter-inaugural ball," described by Davis as "no Guy Lombardo affair."

Counter-ball music will be The Fugs and folksingers Judy Collins and Phil Ochs. No violence intended.

"We're not going to disrupt the inauguration in any way," explained David Dellinger, co-chairman of the National Mobilization for Peace. "We do not anticipate a Chicago-type confrontation, and will do nothing to bring that about."

Calls from volunteers are filed according to special skills, and drawn on as the need arises. As usual, some show more enthusiasm than dedication.

A recent caller offered her help, saying she could type, answer phones, and was available for just anything.

Fine, answered a worker in the volunteer committee, they could use her on Monday. No, said the caller, her son had a dental appointment on Monday and she had to take him.

Tuesday, then? "Golly," came the reply. "I have my annual physical examination and a hair appointment that day."

How about Wednesday? "Gee, I play bridge at the club on Wednesday."

"But, by the way," she added, "I need six tickets for the inaugural ball and the parade. Could you help me out?"

Hippies Anonymous: It Helps to Talk

By TOM TIEDE

NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Every Tuesday evening at 8:30 a couple of dozen men and women meet in a room of the St. Thomas Episcopal Church.

Rev. Henry H. Bruel presides.

It is an informal affair. No gavel, knock, no minutes are read. One by one people just stand up or remain seated and began talking about all the troubles they are having with their children.

One man sighs that his kid's hair is hanging down to his rear end. Another wonders what marijuana is doing to the "little guy" he raised.

A woman takes the floor and begins a lengthy discourse on the sexual relationships of her daughter at college. She thinks the girl is too permissive and encouraging, uses the pill and all that.

Suddenly, a young man rises in the front of the room. His hair is in ringlets, he needs a shave and he is arrogantly sloppy.

"Crap," he says. "That's all I got to say."

Those in attendance are not shocked. On the contrary they expect and want such outbursts. They are all parents of outbursting, "hippie-like" kids and they are meeting to exchange some ideas and find some answers.

Before the evening is over, the parents will definitely exchange ideas. The kid with the ringlets and foul mouth will see to that. And if no answers are forthcoming at the very least the entire crowd will have benefited from the earthy, candid confrontation.

The church group is known in Washington as Hippies Anonymous, a nickname that was born from the group's operational kinship to Alcoholics Anonymous.

Like AA, members have a similar problem and try to solve it by understanding, soul cleansing and mutual suggestion.

Rev. Bruel, who founded the group two years ago, believes that it represents one of the few attempts in the nation to face the generation gap at the root cause and fundamental human level.

Attending parents are un-per middle class, upper middle age. And the kids who wander in are 13 to 17 and in the full bloom of flower power.

Bruel says the sessions are wide open and uninhibited. Squabbles, accusations, admissions. And if the minister feels his group is going stale, he devises something communicative to perk it up. Taking off shoes, for example, or turning to one's neighbor and playing touch-touch.

Some parents are embarrassed. Some outraged. But about 25 of them say they would not miss the weekly festival for anything.

Despite such devotion, though, parents are the first to admit they have made little real progress. Some have gotten runaways back, a few are talking to their young again, but no problem cure-all has been found.

This is unfortunate, Bruel confesses, because many parents who visit his meetings are seeking cure-alls.

He says they come in looking for aspirin and when they don't find any they never come back.

"Too many parents," he says, "just make a one shot visit, stand up and tell us how wonderful they've been to their kids and how they can't understand why their brats have turned on them like they have."

"This kind of parent lasts only a meeting or two. When they find out we aren't trying to remodel our young people, that we are just trying to learn to live with them, then they go back home forever."

Bruel believes that the 25 parents who have not abandoned Hippies Anonymous over the months have probably come to the same conclusion he has: There is no solution to today's young-old dilemma.

These parents have decided that they can't really yield enough to satisfy their kids and their kids can't yield enough to satisfy them.

The result a gap, but a mutually accepted one.

So it is, Bruel says, the parents have resigned themselves.

Joint Return Offers Advantages for Most

Editor's note: It is time to think about the income tax again. This is Chapter Three of a series reviewing the regulations, with emphasis on taking advantage of all exclusions and deductions legally due you.

By RAY DE CRANE
NEA Publications

Almost invariably, married persons will save tax dollars by filing a joint return.

But since there are exceptions to this general rule, these special circumstances should be considered before the final election is made. Separate returns oftentimes will offer a savings for married taxpayers if:

- One of the spouses who had taxable income also had unusually high medical expenses.

- Each had capital losses of more than $1,000 in 1968 from the sale of unprofitable investments.

- They are residents of one of the community property states—Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas and Washington. They may treat income on their separate returns as if 50 per cent had been earned by each. Similarly, contributions, interest, taxes and medical expenses are treated as if paid from community funds with half of the deductions accorded to each spouse.

Since medical expenses are not deductible until after they exceed 3 per cent of adjusted gross income, it is apparent that a separate return by the party having a lower income and relatively high medical expenses would produce a bigger deduction than would be permitted on a joint return. The advan-considered to have been made one-half by each spouse.

It must be remembered, too, that when married persons elect to file separate returns each must follow the same course with respect to deductions. They each must itemize deductions, or each take the 10 per cent allowance for deductions (subject to limitations), or each take the minimum standard deduction (subject to limitations).

Since there were wide swings in the stock market last year there is a possibility that if husband and wife each own securities there could have been losses taken by each. On a joint return they are limited to a maximum $1,000 loss offset against ordinary income after first applying the losses against capital gains. On separate returns each spouse could realize the benefit of the full $1,000 deduction against other income.

THE 1970 BUDGET AT A GLANCE

President Johnson's proposed budget for fiscal 1970, starting next July 1, would raise federal spending to the highest point in history. It forecasts a $3.4 billion surplus, providing Congress extends the 10 per cent surtax, now scheduled to expire June 30, for another year. Without the surtax, the budget would show an $8.7 billion deficit. Defense expenditures are budgeted for a $500 million increase over 1969, but the Vietnam share of the total is expected to drop by $3.4 billion, the first decline since the United States became involved in the war.

WEST ALL-STARS WIN IN AFL, NFL

By ALEX KAHN
UPI Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Roman Gabriel of the Los Angeles Rams and Donny Anderson of the Green Bay Packers were thankful today that the West All-Stars won the National Football League's Pro Bowl game and kept them from being the "goats" of the contest.
Instead, Gabriel was voted the most valuable player and Anderson was hailed for his key role in the 10-7 victory over the East All-Stars.

Carroll Dale, the Green Bay end who once was Gabriel's teammate on the Rams, shared in the honors with the Los Angeles quarterback for his key catches that helped set up both of the West scores Sunday.
The victory was the 12th in the 19-game series for the West against seven losses but it took an explosive drive in the final three minutes for the West to record its only touchdown and pull out the win.

On that drive, Gabriel moved the West 55 yards on four plays and the major gains were by Dale and Anderson. Gabriel hit Dale with a 25-yard pass and chuckled afterward, "Carroll was not my primary target and not even my secondary one, but I happened to see him all alone and got the ball to him somehow."
Anderson then cut over tackle, found running room and raced 22 yards to the one. Bill Brown of the Vikings actually scored the winning touchdown.

Only a penalty which nullified an apparent touchdown by Leroy Kelly of Cleveland in the second period kept Gabriel from possibly handing the game to the East.
He fumbled an attempted handoff and Don Brumm of St. Louis picked up the ball and ran it 31 yards to the four. But the East was guilty of illegal motion on the apparent score by Kelly and a strong West defense held.

The West then came back with an 80-yard drive, highlighted by Gabriel's 45 yard pass to Dale. The drive ended with the Rams Bruce Gossett kicking a 30-yard field goal.
Anderson almost got the goat horns in the third period with a 25-yard punt that gave the East possession on the West's 36. Three plays later Don Meredith of Dallas hit Paul Warfield of Cleveland with a 34-yard touchdown pass to put the East ahead.

FIVESTAR CONFERENCE STANDINGS
TEAM	WON	LOST	PCT.
Seminole	3	0	1.000
HENRYETTA	2	1	.633
Holdenville	2	2	.500
Wewoka	0	2	.000
Bristow	0	2	.000

Hens hold 2nd in Five Star loop

The tough Five Star conference composed of Class A high school teams has begun to shape up now and the Henryetta Fighting Hens find themselves in second place behind Seminole.
Seminole, the front running team, has three conference victories including a close win over the Hens. In addition to the Hens Seminole has defeated Holdenville and Wewoka. Seminole comes to Henryetta Tuesday night to face the Hens in what could be one of the key games of the season in the conference.

Holdenville has shown signs of coming to life in their last two outings as they defeated Bristow and Wewoka after early season losses to the Hens and Seminole. Holdenville was the pre-season pick to win the conference.

Wewoka got off to a slow start because of playing in the finals of the Class A football playoffs. This had to hurt them some and they have yet to win in the conference. Wewoka has been defeated by both Holdenville and Seminole.
Bristow was the pre-season pick to finish last in the conference and thus far they've pulled no surprises. They have suffered losses to the Hens and Holdenville.

Henryetta has shown surprising strength in the conference and this is shown by their victory over Holdenville. The Hens battled Seminole tooth and nail before dropping a close one and this Tuesday night will give them another chance. The Hens have also whipped Bristow.

With a few bounces in the right direction the Hens could finish high in the conference standings with a good shot at the crown.

TAKE KOBAYASHI CROWN
MANILA (UPI)—Hiroshi Kobayashi of Japan has been stripped of his world junior lightweight title by the World Boxing Council because of his alleged refusal to honor a contract to fight Rene Barrientos of The Philippines.

Justiniano Montano Jr., president of the WBC, said the council will recognize the winner of the fight between Barrientos and Ruben Navarro of Los Angeles Feb. 15 as the new champion.

Dewar to host tournament for county teams

The Dewar Dragons will play host to the Okmulgee County tournament for Class B and C schools beginning this Monday night.

The following teams will be entered: Okmulgee Dunbar, Schuller, Dewar, Wilson, Morris, Beggs, and Preston.

The Dewar Dragons and Dunbar from Okmulgee will be the favored teams and should afford fans from the local area some exciting action. Preston's cagers should also be in the running if Dunbar or Dewar should falter.

The tournament will open Monday at 6:30 p.m. and will feature Dunbar and Schuller in boy's competition. Dewar and Morris will vie in girl's action at 7:45 and Wilson and Morris boy's will start action at 9 p.m.

Tuesday action will begin at 7 p.m. and will feature Dunbar and Schuller girls. Dewar will get started in the tournament with their boy's team at 8 p.m. as they will face Beggs.

Preston will play for the first time Wednesday as they take on the winner of the Dunbar-Schuller game in boy's competition and the Preston girls will take on the winner of the Dewar-Morris girl's game.

Finals are set for 6:30-9 p.m. and Saturday.

Chicks face Dogs tonight

Coach Scott Ogee and Leslie Johnston will get their eighth and ninth grade teams in action tonight at Okmulgee as they will face the Bulldogs beginning at 6 p.m. with eighth grade action and 7:30 p.m. for 9th grade competition.

The game will be a little five conference game for the Chicks. The Chicks have recently defeated Okmulgee and will seek to keep up their winning ways.

Mickey Mantle has hit more World Series homers (18) than any other major leaguer.

Sport Parade

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Today is Dick Nixon's day; tomorrow is Stan (The Man) Musial's.

That's when they announce the identity of any new addition to Baseball's Hall of Fame in Cooperstown and Musial's chances of making it are about the same as Nixon's for making the swearing in ceremony in Washington today.

The only question about Musial is whether he'll become the only unanimous choice ever to be voted into the Hall of Fame. The ones who did the voting are the Baseball Writers Association of America and knowing my fellow members as I do, I'd have to say Stan The Man will be elected all right—but not unanimously.

It's funny in a way. Baseball writers always poke fun and laugh at baseball owners because they never can agree on anything and then go out and fall into the very same pit themselves.

Musial certainly was one of the greatest ballplayers ever to wear the St. Louis Cardinals' uniform. Some even would argue he was THE greatest. He holds more than 50 National League and major league records but for some that still isn't enough to qualify him for enshrinement.

Some people are just plain hard to convince. They wouldn't applaud even if they saw a guy move a mountain.

From 1941 through 1963 with one year out for military service, Musial went to bat 10,881 times, collected 3,608 hits, drove in 1,337 runs, hit 472 homers and batted .332. He won the NL batting title seven times and was MVP three times. Moreover, he helped the Cards to four pennants and three world championships and had two hits in three times up the last game he ever played even though he was only a few weeks shy of 43.

I felt Stan Musial moved a mountain so when it came time to applaud I did by making him first choice on my Hall of Fame ballot in the latest election. Roy Campanella was my second choice.

Whatever disappointment Musial may feel at not being a unanimous selection should be cushioned by the fact this was the first year he became eligible to be elected and the only three others voted in the first time around were Bob Feller, Jackie Robinson and Ted Williams.

It's hard to believe but nonetheless true that even Joe DiMaggio couldn't make it his first time around. That gives you an idea of how hard it is to impress some baseball writers.

Knowing how unpredictable they are, and in a way appreciating them all the more for it, I wouldn't be the least bit surprised if the baseball writers accord Musial the largest vote ever even through they fail to make him a unanimous choice. Williams collected the heaviest previous vote ever, approximately 93 per cent, I believe. Stan The Man could top that.

If you ever saw Musial hit, you'll never forget him with that peek-a-boo stance of his and that wonderfully fluid swing, if you never saw him hit—particularly at friendly Ebbets Field—you missed the treat of a lifetime.

More than having been a unique ballplayer, Musial is a unique man.

Here's a guy nobody ever said a foul word about. That includes those who employed him, those employed with him, and even those employed against him. There was never any prima donna in Stan Musial from little Donora, Pa.

Maybe the late Johnny Keane said it best one night in August 1963 when Musial announced he was retiring in six more weeks.

"It's been a great honor, a great privilege, to have put on the same uniform and dressed in the same clubhouse as this great ballplayer," said Keane.

Later they went out and built a statue of Musial in front of the Cardinals' ballpark.

No wonder.
I never had the honor or privilege of putting on the same uniform but I do have the honor and privilege of knowing Stan Musial. And voting for him, too.

Club Style Show? I guess it has.

At 9 a.m. Thursday, I boarded an American Airlines jet flying to Washington, D. C. I felt pretty secure about this trip as I hadn't heard of a plane to Washington D. C. being diverted to Cuba! The next day I stepped into another world — a world in which the election hullabaloo of the past months culminated in five glorious days of festivity! There I was among the some 70,000 visitors who witnessed history in the making — the inauguration of a president!

For me, the victory of Nixon has particular significance. It brings back memories of a little girl attending Irving Grade School. The year was 1952 — election year! This little girl was campaign manager for Dwight David Eisenhower in a mock election held by her class. (I have a strong suspicion that she was selected simply because she was the only one in the room smitten by Ike!!)

Emotions ran high in that tiny classroom. Needless to say, the little girl's campaign speech was not too well received. That day she made a commitment to become a Republican. Today she is still a Republican and will soon be a small part in the inauguration of a president. Funniest thing, I am that little girl halfway grown up!

How does one get ready for the experience of a lifetime? Someday, I'd like for my grandchildren to read this and realize that the inauguration itself is only a small portion of the experience. With it goes the shopping, making plans, packing, etc. — all are an important part of an inauguration! I would imagine that all over the United States

Nixon committed to peace effort

Police have robbery car description

Henryetta police said Monday they have a complete description of the car used in the robbery Friday night of a city couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Pitcher, 104 N. 11, were robbed by two masked men as they were watching television in their home.

Police Chief Jock Summers said the department knows the "color, make and model of the car they used."

He said police have questioned "a dozen witnesses. We're tracing out every lead."

The Pitchers said they were watching television when he got up to let out the dog.

"This man grabbed me by the hair and the back of the neck and shoved me inside and into a chair," Pitcher told police.

He said the man, his face covered with a woman's stocking, then proceeded to beat him about the head.

An accomplice grabbed Mrs. Pitcher, placing his hand over her eyes, she said.

The second man also was disguised with a stocking over his head.

Council sets full agenda

Henryetta's city council will take final action Tuesday night on $78,000 in airport construction projects.

The council is expected to give final approval to the lighting project bid, approved preliminarily at last week's regular meeting.

The low bidder was Crane Electric Co. of Henryetta with a bid of $18,343, almost $3,000 under the engineer's estimate.

The council is expected to reject bids on a 80-by-120 foot hangar.

The apparent low bidder, Star Builders of Tulsa, was over the engineer's estimate.

The bid was $59,420, and the estimate was $57,000.

Also to be discussed and voted on is a new municipal court ordinance.

The model ordinance has been passed by many other state cities to streamline their courts and bring them in line with the recent state court reform.

Vows will heal U. S. divisions

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Senior Editor

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Richard Milhous Nixon became the 37th president of the United States today with a solemn commitment to devote all of his energies to "the cause of peace among nations" and the healing of strident divisions among the American people.

To a nation suffering from "a crisis of spirit," the new Chief Executive offered a challenge to seize "not the cup of despair, but the chalice of opportunity."

In a 1,700-word inaugural address, delivered from the Capitol steps moments after he had taken his oath of office, Nixon said that under his administration, America will seek "the greatest honor history can bestow"—the title of peacemaker.

"After a period of confrontation, we are entering an era of negotiation," he said.

At home, he said, Americans must "stop shouting at one another" and learn to listen, to care, to understand, to display in their everyday relations the simple but basic virtues of "goodness, decency, love, kindness."

Just "to lower our voices" would be a help, he said.

Nixon Pledge

Pledging his administration to keep up the struggle for equal rights for Negroes, he said:

"No man can be fully free while his neighbor is not. To go forward at all is to go forward together. This means black and white together, as one nation, not two."

Abroad, Nixon said, America seeks "an open world . . . in which no people, great or small, will live in angry isolation."

He challenged Communist bloc nations to "peaceful competition, not in conquering territory or extending dominion, but in enriching the life of man."

He also invited all nations to cooperate with America "to reduce the burden of arms, to strengthen the structure of peace, to lift up the poor and the hungry."

Nixon did not mention Vietnam by name. But he said:

"The peace we seek to win is not victory over any other people, but the peace that comes 'with healing in its wings'; with compassion for those who have suffered; with understanding for those who have opposed us; with the opportunity for all the people of this earth to choose their own destiny."

Nixon was sworn in by Chief Justice Earl Warren shortly after Vice President Spiro T. Agnew had taken his oath of office.

In a gesture symbolizing the dedication of his administration to peace, Nixon took the 38word presidential oath prescribed by the Constitution with his hand resting on two family Bibles open to the Prophet Isaiah's vision of a day when men shall "beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks."

His wife Pat, radiant in a pink wool ensemble topped off with Russian sable furs, held the bibles while her husband took the oath.

Security Heavy

The tightest security precautions for any inaugural in history were invoked for the hour-long ceremony and the 2½ hour parade down Pennsylvania Avenue which followed.

The Secret Service searched and sealed every potential hiding place for a possible assassin. Office buildings along the route were ordered to keep their windows closed and admit no strangers. About 3,000 police and some 10,000 troops were on hand to prevent or quickly control disruptive incidents.

In his inaugural address, Nixon said that America today finds itself "rich in goods, but ragged in spirit; reaching with magnificent precision for the moon, but falling into raucous discord here on earth."

"We are caught in war, wanting peace. We are torn by division, wanting unity. We see around us empty lives, wanting fulfillment. We see tasks that need doing, waiting for hands to do them."

To this "crisis of the spirit," Nixon said the only answer is a return to the basics of friendly human discourse.

He appealed particularly for a cessation of "angry rhetoric that fans discontents into hatreds."

"We cannot learn from one another until we stop shouting at one another—until we speak quietly enough so that our words can be heard as well as our voices."

Will Listen

He promised that his administration will listen to the voices of all the people, including "the voices of quiet anguish . . . that speak without words; the injured voices, the anxious voices, the voices that have despaired of being heard."

"Those who have been left out, we will try to bring in," he pledged. "Those left behind, we will help to catch up."

Nixon's only reference to crime was a promise that "for all our people, we will set as our goal the decent order that makes progress possible and our lives secure."

Nixon concluded the address with the Lincolnian call to the nation to "go forward, firm in our faith, steadfast in our purpose, cautious of the dangers; but sustained by our confidence in the will of God and the promise of man."

Following the inaugural ceremony and lunch at the Capitol, Nixon and his wife Pat ride to the White House at the head of the traditional parade, which they will review from a booth protected by bullet-proof glass.

Nixon had coffee with Johnson at the White House after attending an interdenominational prayer service at the State Department auditorium. Outgoing and incoming presidents conferred briefly before going to the Capitol for the republic's most solemn civic ritual.

Nixon and Johnson emerged from the White House at 11:05 a.m. and got into a glass-topped limousine with the presidential seal on the side and the American and presidential flags on the front.

Lynda and Luci, the Johnson daughters who left at the same time, stopped in the White House drive to wave goodbye to servants and members of the staff watching from windows.

Hickel wins 14 to 3 vote for approval

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate Interior Committee today approved the appointment of Walter J. Hickel to be secretary of interior in the Nixon administration.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., chairman of the committee, said the vote in a closed session, to recommend confirmation was 14 to 3.

Jackson said Sens. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, and George McGovern, D-S.D., voted against approval of Hickel.

Other cabinet selections for the new administration either have been approved or were expected to be approved by Senate committees later today or by mid-week at the latest.

Jackson said a few details concerning divestiture by Hickel of some financial interests remained to be cleared up for the record, but said these presented no bar to the committee's approval.

Approval of Hickel came after four days of consideration, longest for any Nixon cabinet choices.

5 years, 59 days — LBJ

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Lyndon B. Johnson, the nation's 36th president, spent five years and 59 days at the pinnacle of power. Today, he was yielding the nation's highest office to Richard M. Nixon.

Johnson hoped to be back in his native Texas by sundown.

He is leaving the presidency with grace and style and a poignancy after 37 years on the Washington scene. "He is making a clean break," said one aide.

Johnson's final week in office was filled with drama, big and little successes and an outpouring of affection by big politicians and little people. They said he had been a "good president."

The polls he prized so much, too much at times, were kind to him in the end. One showed his popularity had soared to 64.5 per cent after his State of the Union address.

So low in spirits was he last March 31 when he announced that he would not seek reelection, he felt that if he "signed the Lord's Prayer" he would be criticized.

Ex-Henryetta woman says capitol hectic

there were many, many women who went through the same preparations that lead to several hours dancing in celebration of the dawn of a new era in presidential history.

When people first learn you are going to Washington D. C. They invariably ask, "This your first trip?" Then when I nod my yes they seem to sigh a sigh of relief and lean toward me with a confidential (almost conspiratorial) expression, and with low voices begin their travelog.

"You really must find time to visit the Smithsonian" or "You really must go to Arthurs" or "There's the cutest little bar or bistro . . ." If I went everywhere that's been suggested, I'd have to stay a whole year! (Since I could only stay five days I had to be a little more selective!)

All told, people are really great! One friend told me that I should call his friend if I needed anything. You can imagine my surprise when he mentioned John Burzio! (from Henryetta). Small world, isn't it?

There are so many things to do to get ready. Decisions, decisions! What shall I wear? (If the cost of the clothing and accessories of all those attending were added up, the poor of our country might eat well for years!)

I asked myself, "What does one wear to a ball?" I did find that Julie (Eisenhower) and Tricia Nixon were wearing shoes from Bakers! After shopping, I decided to wear a ball gown and coat that Mrs. Sam Henderson of Henryetta had made for me many years ago.

It is my favorite and as pretty as any I saw there. It is a brocade made of two contrasting colors (red and gold) which combined give an iridescent sheen. Unfortunately, Bakers could not dye shoes to match the dress!

U.C.L.A. proves they can win without Big Lew

By FRED MCMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Rival coaches got a good look Saturday night at what to expect from the UCLA basketball team next year without All-America Lew Alcindor gazing down their throats—trouble.

With the 7-foot-1-inch Alcindor playing only 17 minutes and contributing just eight points, the top-ranked Bruins relied heavily on a strong bench Saturday night to humble the University of Houston 100-64 in a nationally televised contest.

Sophomore Steve Patterson, the heir-apparent to Alcindor, played his longest game for UCLA and showed everyone that the Bruins have nothing to fear at the center position next season by controlling the boards and starting several fast breaks.

Junior guard John Vallely and senior guard Bill Sweek also were instrumental in the Bruins' victory with 18 and 15 points respectively, and soph Curtis Rowe played a fine defensive game and scored 14 points.

The remainder of the UPI top 10 who saw action Saturday also were successful. Second-ranked North Carolina beat Wake Forest 94-89, third-ranked Santa Clara whipped San Jose St. 64-49, fourth-ranked Davidson squeezed by VMI 66-64, sixth-ranked Kentucky topped Tennessee 69-66, seventh-ranked New Mexico State defeated Texas, El Paso 80-65, eighth-ranked St. John's clobbered West Virginia 91-62, ninth-ranked Kansas edged Kansas State 73-67 and tenth-ranked Villanova stopped VPI 70-57.

Charlie Scott, Lee Dedmon and Bill Bunting combined for 68 points in pacing the Tar Heels to their 13th triumph in 14 games. Scott had 26 points, Dedmon 22 and Bunting 20 as North Carolina sent the Deacons down to their 10th loss in 15 games.

Santa Clara registered its 16th straight victory, a school record, in stopping San Jose State. The Broncos connected on 55 per cent of their field goal attempts with junior Dennis Awtry leading the attack with 22 points.

Dave Moser sank a field goal as the gun sounded to give Davidson its margin of victory over stubborn VMI. The Keydets, only 2-10 on the season, trailed by eight points with just a minute left to play but rallied to tie the score with only 11 seconds remaining.

Dan Issel's 21 points paced Kentucky's victory, 5-8 Charlie Criss paced New Mexico State's triumph with 23 points and John Warren's 26 points sparked St. John's to victory.

Defense studying 12 Sirhan trial jurors

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The attitudes and backgrounds of 12 persons tentatively selected to try Sirhan B. Sirhan for the slaying of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy were scrutinized by defense attorneys today.

The three lawyers must decide whether the six men and six women would make a better jury than whoever might take their places if they were challenged by the defense.

The prosecution appeared satisfied with the potential jurors. Chief Deputy Dist. Atty. Lynn D. Compton startled courtroom observers last Friday when he announced, "We accept the jury as now constituted."

Chief defense counsel Grant B. Cooper requested and obtained a recess of the trial until Tuesday "to weigh the possibility of accepting this jury as a whole."

Cooper was appearing in federal court today to argue motions for a new trial in the Friars Club card cheating case in which he was one of the defense attorneys.

If the Sirhan defense also waives its remaining peremptory challengers for which no reason must be given, opening arguments in the trial could begin as soon as the six alternate jurors are seated.

But if the defense decides to exercise any of its challenges, the prosecution's waiver of its peremptory challenges would be disregarded and it could use up its remaining 19 challengers.

During a week of jury selection, 25 persons were excused; two for cause, two on peremptories and the rest because serving during the long trial would be a hardship on them and their families.

DARLINGTON, England (UPI)—Mrs. Edna Snowden, 52, complained to officials of the Ministry of Transport automobile test driving center that she failed to pass her test because there was no ladies' room nearby and therefore she was "too nervous" when taking the test.

Carl Tyler new prexy of lawmen

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — State Crime Bureau Director Carl Tyler is the new president of the Oklahoma Sheriffs and Peace Officers Association.

Tyler and other officers were elected Sunday at the close of the association's three-day 55th annual convention here, attended by more than 650 officers.

Other new officers are Cleveland County Sheriff Bill Porter, first vice president; Enid Police Chief Dale Moxley, second vice president, and former FBI agent Fred Bullard, third vice president. Ray Lambert, ballistics expert for the state crime bureau, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

New members of the board of governors are B. J. Gibson, former Elk City police chief; Bob Turner, Oklahoma County sheriff; Milburn Shaver, chief of security at Tinker Air Force Base, and Highway Patrol Lt. Don McDaniel of Tulsa.

The association's 1970 convention will be in Tulsa.

Concise summary of Nixon speech listed

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Highlight excerpts from President Nixon's inaugural address:

"Forces are now converging that make possible, for the first time, the hope that many of man's deepest aspirations can at last be realized. The spiraling pace of change allows us to contemplate, within our lifetime, advances that once would have taken centuries. In throwing wide the horizons of space, we have discovered new horizons on earth. For the first time, because the people of the world want peace and the leaders are afraid of war, the times are on the side of peace."

The greatest honor history can bestow is the title of peacemaker. This honor now beckons America—the chance to help lead the world at last out of the valley of turmoil, and onto that high ground of peace man has dreamed of since the dawn of civilization...this is our summons to greatness."

"The simple things are the ones most needed today if we are to surmount what divides us, and cement what unites us. "To lower our voices would be a simple thing."

"We cannot learn from one another until we stop shouting at one another—until we speak quietly enough so that our words can be heard as well as our voices."

"For its part government will listen. We will strive to listen in new ways—to the voices of quiet anguish, the voices that speak without words, the voices of the heart—to the injured voices, the anxious voices, the voices that have despaired of being heard."

"Those who have been left out, we will try to bring in. "Those left behind, we will help to catch up."

"No man can be fully free while his neighbor is not. To go forward at all is to go forward together. This means black and white together, as one nation, not two. The laws have caught up with our conscience. What remains is to give life to what is in the law; to ensure at last that as all are born equal in dignity before God, all are born equal in dignity before man."

"I have taken an oath today in the presence of God and my countrymen. To that oath, I add this sacred commitment: I shall consecrate my office, my energies and all the wisdom I can summon, to the cause of peace among nations."

"We have endured a long night of the American spirit. But as our eyes catch the dimness of the first rays of dawn, let us not curse the remaining dark. Let us gather the light."

"Our destiny offers, not the cup of despair, but the chalice of opportunity. So let us seize it, not in fear, but in gladness—and 'riders on the earth together,' let us go forward, firm in our faith, steadfast in our purpose, cautious of the dangers; but sustained by our confidence in the will of God and the promise of man."

DENVER (UPI) — The Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (OCAW), which ordered more than 50,000 oil refinery workers off their jobs Jan. 4, said some of the union members would be returning to work early this week.

Union President A. F. Grosppiron said he expected agreements would be reached today or Tuesday with some "fair sized" oil firms.

OCAW workers at American's Eldorado Refinery reached agreement with American Oil Sunday on wages and benefits for a new contract.

TV bugging you? Try reading

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—When ever the effect of constantly watching television gets me down, I re-read "Cyrano de Bergerac" as a replenishment of romance.

Whenever I have had my absolute fill of flapping television gooddedygook about the "now" generation, the "now" this and the "now" that,

I remember what was once written about the immortal Edmond Rostand play:

"It is only the realists, who write about contemporary manners and contemporary morals, who grow speedily old-fashioned: The romantics, who escape from their own period, remain forever young and ever new."

Perhaps this is why I believe that Truman Capote's two fragile dramatic specials for ABC-TV, "A Christmas Memory" and "The Thanksgiving Visitor," will remain forever young and ever new.

In a medium, television, that has an essentially immediate nature, these two Capote efforts—with their exquisitely timeless universals—will last, just as surely as the tract-like dramas will disappear with the wind. And isn't there a message there for the networks? With the downgrading of violence, isn't it time to pursue the quality most lacking in television—romance?

Although the setting was contemporary, last Friday night's 90-minute NBC-TV special, "Male of the Species," with Sean Connery, Paul Scofield, Michael Caine and Anna Calder-Marshall, had a strong sense of purity and romance, and was therefore universal. It is no classic, as are the two Capote works, but it was an excellent step toward a video Valhalla.

I guess I've read "Cyrano" 15 or 20 times. It makes me happier than anything else I've ever read, and for that reason I love it, and never more than during the years in which I've reviewed television. For its grandeur is an antidote to the puny efforts that mesmerize us too much of the time each night from coast to coast.

Is there anything more exuberant than the scene in which Cyrano, poet and hater of hypocrisy, composes a ballad in a duel, and finishing his rhymes, thrusts home? Rostand's words withstand the era of the common man and its great common denominator, television. A writer of teleplays may have his heroine say "kiss me." But Rostand has her say, "come live on my lips."

Dick sees danger in letting wigs flip in labor disputes

By DICK WEST
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Last June a taxi company in Miami, Fla., filed an unfair labor practice charge against a union. The company claimed that a union official had threatened some of its employees.

This week the National Labor Relations Board, which reviewed the case, upheld a hearing examiner's recommendation that the complaint be dismissed.

In doing so, the board may have set a precedent that will create turmoil and havoc in labor-management relations.

My fears in this regard stem from one of the actions attributed to the union official. It was alleged that while arguing with a company employee he flipped the employee's hair piece and asked "How do you hold that thing on?"

The board accepted the examiner's finding that "The flipping of the toupee, by itself would not appear to be coercive."

In other words, it apparently has given a free hand to both sides in a labor dispute to flip each other's wigs.

One does not need a great amount of foresight to envision the impact this likely will have on future labor negotiations.

Bargaining sessions, as you know, are often highly emotional affairs. Everyone is up tight to begin with, and angry and frustration build rapidly when the talks hit a snag.

Under those circumstances, what union official, upon having his latest proposal rejected, will be able to resist leaning across the table and flipping the company president's toupee?

And what management representative, when talking out of the room after breaking off negotiations, will be able to resist giving a parting flip to his union counterpart's hair piece?

In these days of rampant baldness and the ever increasing use of cranial camouflage, an outbreak of wig-flipping could wreak disaster on the labor scene.

A management or union official who has suffered the indignity of having his wig flipped is hardly going to be in the mood for compromise.

And don't forget that many union members nowadays are women. You can readily imagine how they would react.

The entire county is in danger of becoming strikebound. Congress should move immediately to make wig-flipping a violation of the Taft-Hartley Act.

Let's support our President

PRESIDENT NIXON'S inaugural address today was, we thought, filled with a good degree of warmth that some might not have expected from the standard bearer of the Republican party, which does not claim to be the party of the people.

All in all, we thought it was a good speech and a clarion call for progress and peace for our nation.

As of now, let all of us remember in this area which did not vote very heavily for him that he is OUR president.

He has the hardest job in the world, bar none! He is the leader of one of the two great powers in the world. The leaders of the other one don't have to worry nearly so much about public opinion as President Nixon does and they don't have to cope with that pesky free press that keeps sticking its nose in places to freely report to the people.

President Nixon has sounded the call to unity. Let us all meet him not half way but three fourths!

NORMAN TRANSCRIPT

College dissenters minority

During the recent political campaign, Sen. Edmund Muskie gained a reputation for handling youthful critics by inviting them to the rostrum to have their say and then deflating them with his retort. His method was used successfully the other day by Dean Calvin D. Linton of George Washington University at Washington, D. C. He suspended classes to let students, faculty and the administration conduct a "no-holds-barred" dialogue.

The university had been the scene of several days of student unrest. Linton addresses himself to the militants. Stating flatly that the dissidents made up just 2 per cent of the student population, Linton warned them against irrational thinking.

"You can expect more antirationalism from me and people like me as long as you think that only 2 per cent of the people want change," was the challenge from the floor by Nick Greer, leader of the university chapter of Students for a Democratic Society.

"Never," Linton shot back, referring to the size of the SDS contingent in the audience, "have so many heard so little from so few."

Student and faculty support of Linton showed that his assessment of the numbers of militants who had agitated the university was accurate. Linton was cheered and militant spokesmen repeatedly booed and heckled, when they attempted to challenge him.

Giving the dissenters their day before the university body and exposing their numbers and shallowness worked. The Muskie treatment proved as effective on campus as it had in politics.

Fred's leadership

There have been many words written, here and in other newspapers, about the challenges facing the new Nixon administration. But after today, the same could be said for Democratic Sen. Fred Harris.

Oklahoma has not agreed with the Democratic leadership of the nation, in recent elections. But soon there will be no such leadership in office. Then the national Democratic leadership can go in any direction its national chairman wishes.

As new national Democratic chairman, Harris can work with Oklahoma members of Congress or the Kennedy group or anyone he feels will help pull the Democratic party together.

He will be able to pick a new direction for the national Democratic effort.

But if his home state goes Republican again, the results will not look very good for him.

LBJ takes young assistant to run his Texas office

By HELEN THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI)—
Backstairs at the White House:
President Johnson is taking his young protege, special assistant Tom Johnson, back home to Texas to run his office and handle his affairs after Jan. 20.

The 27-year-old native of Macon, Ga., is not related but he became close to the President after coming to the White House four years ago.

The tall, lean, dark-haired Georgian (who calls himself "just a country boy" from "the other side of the tracks") started out as a White House fellow, and stayed on as low man on the totem pole under former Press Secretary Bill Moyers.

No. 2 Man

He is currently No. 2 man in presidential Press Secretary George Christian's office and has taken over briefing chores at times when the boss is away.

It took some soul-searching for young Johnson to decide to spend the next six-months to a year, at least, with a former President.

He has many tempting job offers, including one from an avant garde magazine for young people which offered him a $75,000 editor-publisher post.

But Johnson is looking forward to his future in Austin, Tex., presiding as executive assistant in the LBJ offices in the Federal Building.

"I decided after a great deal of reflection to accept the President's offer," he said. "Everyone is looking ahead rather than back . . . to the future."

A Small Staff

The retiring President will have transitional funds and $80,000 annually to operate his office. His assistant will direct a small staff including a few secretaries and two White House speech writers who will be churning out lectures and helping the President on his future memoirs. The writers, both former newspapermen, are Robert L. Hardesty of St. Louis, Mo., and Harry J. Middleton Jr. of Topeka, Kan.

The magnitude of the job ahead and the smallness of the staff somewhat worries Tom Johnson. He will be responsible for the President's mail—perhaps 3,000 letters a week—appointments, speeches, articles, lectures at some 40 universities, and books now at the planning stage.

But the president feels young Johnson is up to it all. "He's a young man with his eyes on the stars and his feet on the ground," the chief executive commented recently.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Bottle or breast feeding

I HAVE just given birth to my second child and used the technique of natural childbirth. I was able to experience this process successfully and with my husband present, felt a great sense of accomplishment.

I breast-fed my first child who is now four years old. I had a great deal of difficulty in breast-feeding because of inadequate milk and pain, but forced myself to do it. Will I be doing my new child an injustice by bottle-feeding her?

Dr. Coleman

Mrs. A. I. Illinois
Dear Mrs. I.: I believe there are a great many psychological advantages to the natural birth program and to breast-feeding. I believe, too, that enthusiastic adherents to these ideas sometimes go overboard in a cultlike wave which does not allow for any variation.

There really is no reason why mothers should be enveloped by a sense of guilt because they are unable to completely follow through on either or both of these methods. In some intellectual groups, breast-feeding and natural childbirth have become symbols of enlightenment. This is false and is especially destructive to women who simply cannot complete the program and are made to feel inadequate and guilty.

The total emotional growth of a child is dependent on a great many other factors besides the security received in infancy by breast-feeding. Too many of the mistakes made by parents are later attributed to bottle-feeding and to the "regular" childbirth technique.

The psychological bond between a mother and a child can be supported in many other ways besides breast-feeding. This is attested to by the great number of adoptive children who without breast-feeding are supported by love and given their rightful chance of security. You can be certain with your awareness, the chances are great that your new child will flourish physically and emotionally if you are freed from the unnecessary guilt you now seem to have.

Is emphysema a new lung condition? I have been told that I have it and am worried that I will not recover from it. Is tobacco a cause and should it be eliminated?

Mr. P. L. Texas

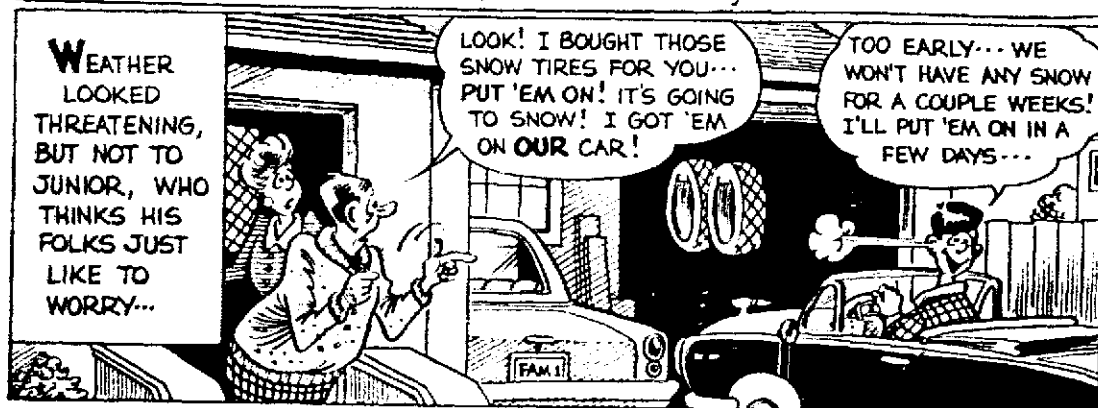

Dear Mr. L.: Emphysema is a chronic lung condition in which the small air sacs of the lung become enlarged. In good health these air sacs are elastic and play an important part in the process of normal breathing. Emphysema has been known for many years, but the number of cases that are now being treated is a tremendous increase over those that were formerly seen.

This is a serious disorder and even though the word, serious, may frighten you and other readers, I hope that this disease can be kept in sensible control not by fear but by better understanding.

When once the air sacs lose their elasticity, the chances are very slight that their former healthy condition will return. It is for this reason that the prevention of emphysema is most important.

Repeated attacks of asthma, chronic bronchitis and pneumonia can leave changes in the lungs that lead to emphysema. Air pollution undoubtedly plays havoc with the lungs of people who live in the cities where factories pour their filthy, irritating chemical fumes into the air with little or no control by city administrations. It is hard to believe that a world that is ready to send a man to the moon cannot filter out the automobile and factory fumes that pollute the air. Tobacco undoubtedly is an important cause in the production of this most distressing condition. I underline this for emphasis.

Hatlo's They'll Do It Every Time

Soviets ask disarm pact from Nixon

By EDWARD J. SHIELDS
MOSCOW (UPI)—In its first bid to the Nixon administration, the Soviet Union today asked for talks on limiting nuclear arms including anti-ballistic missiles.

A Soviet government statement said agreement with the United States on curbing the arms race "is quite feasible though not an easy thing."

The statement said the Kremlin is ready for "a serious exchange of opinion" with the U.S. government "concerning mutual restriction and subsequent reduction of strategic means of delivery of nuclear weapons, including defensive systems."

Leonid Zamyatin, chief of the foreign ministry press department, read the statement to a news conference called hours before Richard M. Nixon was to take the oath in Washington as President of the United States.

U.S.-Soviet talks on limiting the multi-billion dollar missile systems had been scheduled to open in late August. But the United States called off the date to show its displeasure over the Soviet bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia Aug. 21.

Urge Ratification

"It is necessary now to make efforts toward the earliest entry into force of the nonproliferation treaty and its faithful and consistent implementation," the Soviet statement said.

The United States and the Soviet Union signed a treaty to ban the spread of nuclear weapons to nations not now possessing them on July 1. The U.S. Senate has not yet ratified the pact.

Nixon earlier announced opposition to senate approval. Later, in his presidential campaign, he indicated he would seek ratification of the non-proliferation treaty early in his presidency.

The Soviet statement, although asking for talks on cutting the arms race, vowed the Communist camp would carry a big stick for the time being.

"The Soviet Union and other socialist countries, considering the aggressive policy of the NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) bloc and its war preparations, must see to the further strengthening of the security of the countries of the socialist community, and give assistance and support to states fighting for their independence, against the forces of aggression and war."

Scores Military Buildup

The statement cited what it called "persistent attempts, above all by the U.S.A., Britain and the Federal Republic of (West) Germany to step up the activity of the NATO military bloc."

The Soviet statement also urged progress on Premier Alexei N. Kosygin's nine-point plan for arms controls. These include restrictions on nuclear bomber flights and nuclear armed submarine cruises, removal of foreign military bases, setting up "nuclear free" zones around the earth and prohibition of underground nuclear arms testing, the only type allowed under the U.S.-Soviet-British pact banning nuclear explosions underwater, in the atmosphere and in outer space.

Agnew to be more than a 5th wheel?

By JOHN HALL
WASHINGTON (UPI)—In the final hours before its inauguration as Vice President, Spiro T. Agnew was calm, impatient to get started and determined to be something more than fifth wheel in the government.

Agnew, his gray hair freshly cut and slicked back, rushed through a whirlwind of pre-inaugural parties and receptions Sunday, complaining he was "caught up in a mass of minutia."

But he and his family seemed to enjoy themselves and, until President-elect Richard M. Nixon arrived in late afternoon, they were the center of inaugural attention.

Today Agnew was to ride down Pennsylvania Avenue with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey—the man he accused during the campaign of being "squishy soft" on crime—to the Capitol to take the oath of office on a bible borrowed from his daughter.

Celebrities ranging from Chief Justice Earl Warren to former first lady Mamie Eisenhower showed up at a special reception for the vice president-elect at the Smithsonian Institution's sleek new Museum of History and Technology.

Standing in front of the tattered remains of the original "The Star Spangled Banner," Agnew said he and Nixon were celebrating not a political victory but the advent of new leadership "without chaos."

Inauguration not merely 'changing of the guard'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Richard M. Nixon will be the sixth president to come under the writer's scrutiny during his years of covering the White House for United Press International)

By MERRIMAN SMITH
UPI White House Reporter
WASHINGTON (UPI)—

Inauguration of a new president marks not only a guard-changing and a shift of national responsibility, but also a renewal of faith in a system.

Not all Americans would agree. Many historians and statesmen for years have argued that the system is shot full of defects. In any case, Americans characteristically seem never to stop striving to improve it. So strong today is this drive for change that some call it revolution.

By raising his hand over the bible and swearing to uphold the constitution, Richard M. Nixon becomes the inheritor, bailiff and commander-in-chief of a complex society whose mood currently shows a visible degree of anger, ugliness and some disgust.

Nixon will begin to know the loneliness and pain of his office if, within a cruelly short time, he does not produce results: If the Vietnam fighting does not cease, if the Middle East crisis is not reduced, if black Americans do not see signs of improvement in their frequently unhappy lot and if city crime does not subside. In short, Nixon must be prepared to be blamed for everything, including bad weather.

Some Goodwill

The approach of Nixon's inauguration saw a thin mist of goodwill settle over Washington. Critics who only recently held Johnson guilty of playing politics and malperformance began to speak of his departure with nostalgic regret. They sang "auld lang syne" to him on Capitol Hill. The choir included lawmakers who only months earlier had tried to gut Johnson's programs.

Newspapers and the airwaves brimmed with good-natured items about the Nixons. The new president even looked better in editorial cartoons.

Across America, however, thousands of parents, wives and sweethearts continued restive and worried that their men might be killed or wounded in Vietnam even as diplomats talked peace in Paris. Housewives were increasingly concerned over rising prices and the problem of stretching their husbands' paychecks to cover the family bills. Bankers, businessmen, builders and would-be home buyers were testy about high interest rates.

Must Produce

For a day or two, the inauguration may distract their attention from these and other problems. Soon, however, they will be looking to Washington to see what sort of start Nixon & Co. are making on problems which Johnson found so defiant of solution.

Most Congressmen and news analysts took an attitude of "give the new president a chance." How long this attitude would prevail is anybody's guess. But a good bet is not long.

Why? For one thing, Democrats control both houses of Congress. And while they may be receptive to many Nixon proposals, they cannot be expected to be in much of a hurry. Moreover, liberal Democrats now can actively oppose programs and policies they find distasteful without embarrassing their man in the White House.

But even more important is the deep resentment of many Negroes about their economic and social status, and the activities of so-called youth groups bitterly resentful of anything involving Vietnam, the draft and some federal education policies.

The cost of college for your child: How to get ready for it through U.S. Savings Bonds

When your son or daughter is ready for college, will you be ready to pay for it?

Recent estimates show that the cost of attending an institution of higher learning in the mid-1960's averaged about $1,600 a year for public institutions and $2,430 for private ones. And there's every indication that the cost will keep on rising.

That makes it important for parents to act early. Self-help, tuition grants, and student loans may answer part of the problem later—but to bring this goal within your reach, a groundwork of systematic saving should be laid right now. U.S. Savings Bonds are ideal for this purpose.

Why Savings Bonds?

Bonds have a special combination of features to make them uniquely suitable for your education fund. The safety of a government guarantee. Adaptability to a long-range goal while still being readily cashable for any emergency. An assured interest rate of 4.25% when held to maturity, with an automatic 10-year extension privilege. Easy availability through two automatic purchase plans, Payroll Savings where you work or Bond-A-Month where you bank.

And very important tax advantages. That's the main subject of this ad.

First, the interest on Savings Bonds is exempt from all state and local income taxes. And second, you have an option as to when you pay the Federal tax on E. Bond interest—either on a current basis, year by year, or all at once when you redeem the Bond. By using the first option and buying the Bonds in your child's name, as described below, his education fund can become completely tax-free.

Make your child the Bond owner

Under this plan, Bonds are purchased in the child's name, either alone or with a parent named as a beneficiary. These become an outright gift from parent to child.

The income tax liability can usually be shifted to the child by filing a Federal return in his name at the end of the first year of Bond purchases, listing the increase in Bond value as income to him. This initial return establishes the intent, and no further returns need be filed as long as the child's total annual income is less than $600; and no tax will be due if the Bond interest, plus other income, comes to less than $900 ($600 personal exemption plus $300 standard deduction). Assuming that the child never exceeds this $900 income figure in any year, the total interest accruals on his Bonds will be tax-free when he cashes them for his education.

As protection for the taxpayer, a copy of the initial return, establishing the intent, should be retained for possible proof in later years that the interest has been reported.

Your Education Fund Timetable

By following the above formula, your child will get maximum value out of every dollar saved and every dollar added in interest. The figures in the table below thus show the actual amounts available for college, undiminished by taxes.

In deciding what amount you should save each month, use your child's age as the key. This table for monthly purchases of $25, $50, $75, or $100 denomination Bonds, shows how your child can be ready for College Enrollment Day if you start TODAY.

Old Bachelor Looks for a Bride

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: Time has passed too fast. I am an old bachelor (now 70) but I'm in good health, have a nice home, automobile, and my hobby is raising roses.

Sometimes I get a little lonesome for female companionship (not sex, I'm all thru with that) and I'm wondering if maybe I shouldn't marry one of those old widows who has been after me.

I know I'm not perfect, but there always seems to be something wrong with the women I meet. Either they are looking for a meal ticket or they talk too much.

What do you think?

CONSIDERING

DEAR CONSIDERING: Why not? But be sure you get a quiet woman who's not looking for a meal ticket, wants only male companionship, and is also "thru with sex." or you'll have a bigger problem than loneliness.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I recently had a lovely dinner party in our home. One of the couples asked us in advance if they could leave a little early because they'd left their child at home ill. Naturally we said yes.

Well, almost immediately after the dinner this couple put on their coats and made the rounds of all the guests saying goodnight. Needless to say, they broke up the party as others started leaving right after they did.

My husband said he didn't see anything wrong with their saying goodnight to everyone, that if they just sneaked off it would have shown worse manners. I think he is wrong and told him so. What do you think?

ELSIE

DEAR ELSIE: I think guests who depart "early" should do so as inconspicuously as possible. [I also think your husband was probably glad to call it a night and get to bed himself.]

DEAR ABBY: I think your definition of "KARMA" needs to be clarified. It is not merely the calm acceptance of one's "destiny." It is the belief that whatever good or evil a person does during his present lifetime will be returned measure for measure in some future life. To make it more simple, "As ye sow, so shall ye reap." Sincerely,

A BELIEVER

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN IN CLEVELAND": Your husband could be going thru the male counterpart of "change of life." A man who has worked hard for 27 years, and has been a good husband and father, is not likely to go off the deep end permanently.

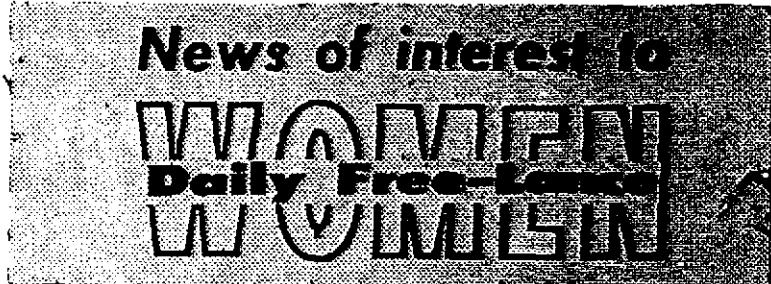

Almost every man after 50 becomes a little worried about growing old, and losing his appeal. His ego needs a boost, and there is always that predatory female around, ready to flatter him and make him feel "young" again. He falls like a ton of oakwood: then the big thrill wears off and he comes trotting home to mama, feeling a little ashamed, but with a nice warm glow inside, knowing there is life in the old boy yet.

The smart wife doesn't put on an academy award scene. She swallows her pride, accepts a little "blame" for not being as affectionate and reassuring as she might have been. And above all, she never mentions it again and she tells NO ONE.

If the woman above is you, and the man is your husband, follow this advice, and your man will spend the rest of his life knocking himself out trying to make it up to you.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Her initials appear often

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—The initials of Lucille Neely probably appear more often in St. Louis than those of any other person—certainly more often than those of any other suburban housewife.

For the past 26 years Lucille has been Mrs. Robert Reim. In 1941, when Reim was a struggling artist, he retouched a print of the seal of the City of St. Louis for the printing firm where he was then employed. The seal was to be part of the official stationery of the late Mayor William Dee Becker.

Reim retouched the seal with its impressive sidewheeler riverboat and in the swirling waters of the Mississippi he delicately sketched LN, the initials of his fiancée.

A version of the seal has been used widely on the city's official stationery since. Reim said he noticed the seal recently on a bid proposal and the "LN leaped out at me from the copy."

Lack of exercise causes obesity

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI)—Studies by University of California scientists indicate that some fat people may be overweight not because they eat more than normal but because they exercise less.

Preliminary research into the habits of obese women showed that their average intake of food was between 1,800 and 2,250 calories per day—not unusually high. But their expenditure of energy for the same period was considerably less than normal.

A long-term study is being prepared which will use new equipment that gives accurate figures on energy expenditure without encumbering the individual.

This study will be concerned with pre-school children, a particularly important age group because obesity at this age is more difficult to treat and is more likely to become permanent.

Dr. Uppern champions spending

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—This news from a financial expert ought to be of some comfort to Dad as the December bills roll in.

"Installment buying," he says, "is the greatest stimulant to thrift the world has ever seen."

This champion of big spending is Dr. Arthur R. Uppern, professor of finance at the University of Florida, and a nationally recognized consulting economist.

Uppern praises American women for converting savings in to "the good things of life."

Thrift, he believes, no longer is measured in large bank accounts, but in mortgaged homes, refrigerators, washers and the like.

His theory is that by learning to put aside so much every month to meet installment payments on everything from the television set to a new car is to acquire a life-time habit of saving.

The economist, in a mortgage banking seminar recently on the Purdue University campus, says that young people should borrow freely.

In middle age, they'll be used to putting aside money and will start saving. And a 65, he concludes, "they can reap the harvest."

"When you have installment payments of $50 or $100 a month, you're actually saving that money," he says. "Look around at your color TV, your automobiles and electric range—they're all savings."

Why do I have to get vaccinated for small pox again; I've been vaccinated for it twice already.

ANSWER:
Small pox vaccination has been proved to be totally effective for no longer than four or five years. The disease is no longer epidemic, but there are still small pox "carriers". It's necessary that you be vaccinated at least every five years to be certain this disease cannot attack. Please do have your doctor vaccinate you again. It's a small price to pay to protect your health.

Left-wingers reforming to counter Charles DeGaulle

by LOREN JENKINS
PARIS (UPI) — President Charles de Gaulle's dispirited left-wing opposition has begun a new, concerted drive to reconstitute itself into a viable alternative to Gaullist rule.

The drive is being spearheaded by 63-year-old Guy Mollet, the Socialist warhorse who for the past 22 years has led the French Section of the Workers International (SFIO), the traditional French Socialist party.

Mollet last month induced the SFIO to dissolve itself in order that a new, broader based Socialist party might be created, uniting all the disparate elements of the French non-Communist left. The new party will avoid the complicated nomenclature of old and call itself simply the Socialist party.

Mollet's decision to found a new Socialist party has sealed the fate of the already disintegrated federation of the left, forged in 1965 by Francois Mitterand in an effort to present De Gaulle with a united leftist front. The SFIO had been one of the major components of the federation.

The federation's heyday came the year of its founding when Mitterand forced De Gaulle into an embarrassing run-off election in his bid for a second five-year term as president.

From that brief moment of victory, however, the federation and the hopes for a united left which it embodied, have been in decline as Mitterand's efforts to work out an alliance with the powerful Communist party met with vehement criticism within the ranks of his movement.

The aborted near-revolution last May, which took the federation-like all French parties — by complete surprise, shattered whatever hopes for success still existed from Mitterand's dream.

In the heat of the crisis, when it appeared that De Gaulle's 10-year-old grip on French political power was on the verge of breaking, Mitterand came forth to offer himself to the nation. His ambitious move fell flat.

The parliamentary elections that followed smothered the federation of the left under charges that it represented an opening to anarchism and communism. The outcome was the greatest landslide in French republican history which gave De Gaulle a solid majority in parliament.

Since then the nation's reeling opposition has tried to pick up the pieces and dress up their parties so as to make them more appealing to the electorate.

In November, Mitterand announced he would no longer lead the federation, a move prompted by his lack of support and his hopes that new and more dynamic leaders would emerge to lead the left into the post-Gaullist era.

Then despite opposition in SFIO's own ranks Mollet himself moved to read himself out of political contention in the hopes that from the ruins of the old left a fresh and powerful Socialist force would emerge.

"There are Socialists outside of our party," Mollet told the December convention of his party to explain why it should be dissolved. "We must create a vehicle where all socialist can unite."

Mollet, like Mitterand, and Gaston Deferre, another leading Socialist politician, vowed he would not be available to lead the new party.

The hope of the left was explained by Charles Hernu, a spokesman for the "clubs" which formed another vital component of the federation.

"It must be a new party," Hernu said, "a new departure for Socialists."

The road ahead, however, is strewn with obstacles, the same obstacles which have kept the left so disunited over the past 30 years.

Already a sizeable minority of the old SFIO is fighting the new party, proclaiming that it isn't for them to dissolve but for the dissidents of the leftwing clubs and other groups, to return to the traditional Socialist fold.

On the other extreme are the famed "groupuscules" of May, Miniscule groupings of anarchists, Maoists, Castroists and Trotskyites, who disdain the older parties and are seeking to lead the nation's younger generations into more radical politics.

"If we are to survive and play a role in the future of France," one middle-aged Socialist leader conceded, "we must draw in youth which is intoxicated by the far left."

Czechs try to re-name Red Square

By JAMES O. JACKSON
PRAGUE (UPI) — Czech students, in a defiant gesture to the Soviet occupation forces, gathered today to rename Red Army Square in honor of student Jan Palach who burned himself to death to protest Russian interference in his homeland.

The country was tense following Palach's death Sunday and there were repeated warnings by high government and Communist party officials against "ill considered actions" which could bring on another Hungary where thousands died.

Student leaders appealed to young people to join a march of mourning from Wenceslas Square where Palach sacrificed himself to Red Army Square in front of the philosophy department of Charles University where he was a student.

Student sources said funeral services for Palach would be held in a small town outside Prague where his mother lives. It was understood memorial services also would be held in Prague.

Knots of people gathered throughout the day on Wenceslas Square where the 21-year-old Palach poured kerosene on himself Thursday and then ran screaming into the street. His agnosed death forced the nation's leaders to face a new decision whether to accept Soviet domination or risk what one speaker at a Sunday rally called "another August."

Students were using hunger strikes and classroom boycotts to show their feelings.

Government officials urged other young persons to reconsider their threats to repeat Palach's sacrifice. Student sources said 14 other young people had vowed they would become "human torches" unless the authorities meet Palach's demands to end censorship and ban the pro-Soviet newspaper Zpravy.

Shortly after the announcement of the youth's death was made, votive candles appeared in Wenceslas Square around the statue of St. Wenceslas and not far from the spot where Palach set himself afire.

On the spot four students continued a hunger strike to protest government failure to meet Palach's demands. Another hunger strike was reported underway in the city of Brno.

Despite bitter cold, more than 1,000 young persons marched solemnly at night fall Sunday through central Prague, led by police and a black-draped Czechoslovak flag. At Hradcany castle, the seat of the Czechoslovak government, they presented officials with a call for action on Palach's demands.

One of the nation's leading liberal writers, Jiri Hochman, pleaded with young people not to follow Palach's example, saying another such death would "drive the nation to madness."

Shaw trial delay asked by Garrison

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison sought today a delay in the start of the trial of Clay L. Shaw, charged with conspiring to murder president John F. Kennedy, until state medical experts are given a chance to study the Kennedy autopsy material, including clothing, photographs, and X-rays.

The trial of the retired New Orleans businessman had been scheduled to begin Tuesday, after legal actions and continuances granted the defense had delayed it for more than a year.

Garrison had set the Jan. 21 opening date last month and said: "The moment of truth has arrived . . . even if Im'm killed, Clay Shaw will go to trial."

But he changed his mind Friday after the outgoing U.S. Attorney General, Ramsey Clark, made public the finding of a private panel of medical experts he had appointed a year ago.

The panel, after studying the autopsy material, concluded the Warren Commission was correct in saying the assassination shots in Dallas in 1963 came from behind.

Garrison, who has scoffed for two years at the commission's conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone in the murder, says his experts can show one shot came from the front.

The state field a motion Friday, to be argued in criminal district court today at 11 a.m. EST, asking an indefinite continuance, with the opening to be reset by the state.

The autopsy material was given to the National Archives by the Kennedy family with the proviso that it be kept locked up, except to government investigators, until 1971.

A general sessions judge in Washington told Garrison's representative he would not order the evidence released unless Garrison can prove during the next two weeks its materiality to the Shaw case.

Passengers to be returned from Cuba after skyjacking

By MATTHEW T. KENNY
MIAMI (UPI)—Sky pirates used a hand grenade, dynamite and automatic weapons in the sixth and seventh hijackings of the year—including one plane carrying the largest load of passengers ever hijacked.

An Eastern Air Lines jet carrying 171 passengers to Miami from New York was diverted to Havana Sunday morning by "a nice looking man of Latin descent."

Hours later, an Equadorian airliner with 81 persons aboard headed for Miami from Equador was commandeered by one or more men armed with guns and dynamite.

Capt. R. D. Smith of Atlanta, pilot of the hijacked Eastern DC8 jet, said the hijacker burst into the cabin holding a hand grenade behind a stewardesses back and shouted "Cuba! Cuba!" when the plane was about two hours out of New York.

Smith said the hijacker was a "Nice looking man of Latin descent. I don't think he was deranged. I figured he knew what he was doing."

He said he first thought the hijacker was holding a gun on stewardess Pamela Gates, but later saw the grenade.

Stewardess Joan Tognola was called to the cabin to interpret for the hijacker, who couldn't speak English.

Through Miss Tognola, the hijacker ordered Smith to stay off the radio, but when Smith explained he hadn't been to Cuba before and needed flight instructions, the hijacker relented.

The pilot of the Equadorian airliner radioed that one or more persons had used automatic weapons and dynamite to force him to divert his craft as he flew between Guayaquil and Quito, Ecuador.

The passengers aboard the Equadorian airliner included Armano Expinel, general Secretary to Equadorian President Valasco Idarra.

The plane was allowed to stop at Barranquilla, Colombia, to refuel for its flight to Cuba. Officials at Barranquilla said they cleared the flight "in order to save the pilot and the passengers."

It was the second time this month that two planes have been commandeered the same day.

The passengers aboard the eastern airliner returned to the United States on two special Eastern planes early this morning, indignantly demanded that the U.S. government take action against the hijackings.

"It was absolutely lousy and it's time that the U.S. government did something about it," said John Kerner of Long Island, N.Y.

Spiro who? now household word

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Spiro Theodore Agnew became a household word as the result of a meteoric rise in politics.

Until a little more than two years ago, he had held no public office higher than county executive.

In 1966, he was elected governor of Maryland in a victory made possible by a sharp split in the usually dominant Democratic party.

On Aug. 8, 1968, to the surprise of Agnew and just about everyone else, he was tapped by Richard M. Nixon to be his running mate.

The son of a Greek immigrant who changed the family name from Anagnostopoulos to Agnew after settling in Baltimore, Agnew is the first American of Greek ancestry to be elected vice president.

Agnew was born in Baltimore Nov. 9, 1918. He attended public schools and Johns Hopkins University, where he studied chemistry for three years before switching to law. He received his law degree from the University of Baltimore in 1947, after serving during World War II as a company commander with the 10th Armored Division in the European theater.

After 10 years in private law practice, he broke into politics in 1957 as a member of the Baltimore County Board, handling appeals from zoning decisions. In 1961, he was elected county executive, or over-all administrator of the populous county.

In 1966, with Democrats deserting their own party ticket in droves, Agnew was elected governor. As governor, he worked to improve Maryland's highways and waterways, strengthen local government, and curb crime.

He won plaudits from Negroes and white liberals for sponsoring the first statewide fair housing bill enacted south of the Mason-Dixon line. But then later got into a row with the same groups for sharply criticizing Negroes involved in ghetto riots.

4-H'ers have 'blind' goal

FALLBROOK, Calif. (UPI)—To most 4-H Club members across the land the ultimate goal of a year's work is to have a steer, sheep or hog bring top prize at the county fair.

To a couple of 4-H members here, their project will cost them money and all they will receive at the end of a year is the deep satisfaction of a job well done and a hope they have helped some blind person to "see" through the eyes of the dogs they raise.

Jeannie Carwood, 17, and Sandra Wiseman, 14, begin teaching the dogs house manners when they are five months old. Jeannie now is training her second dog, which is one year old.

Any day now the Guide Dogs for the Blind organization will come to take the dog, Bettina, away for her final training.

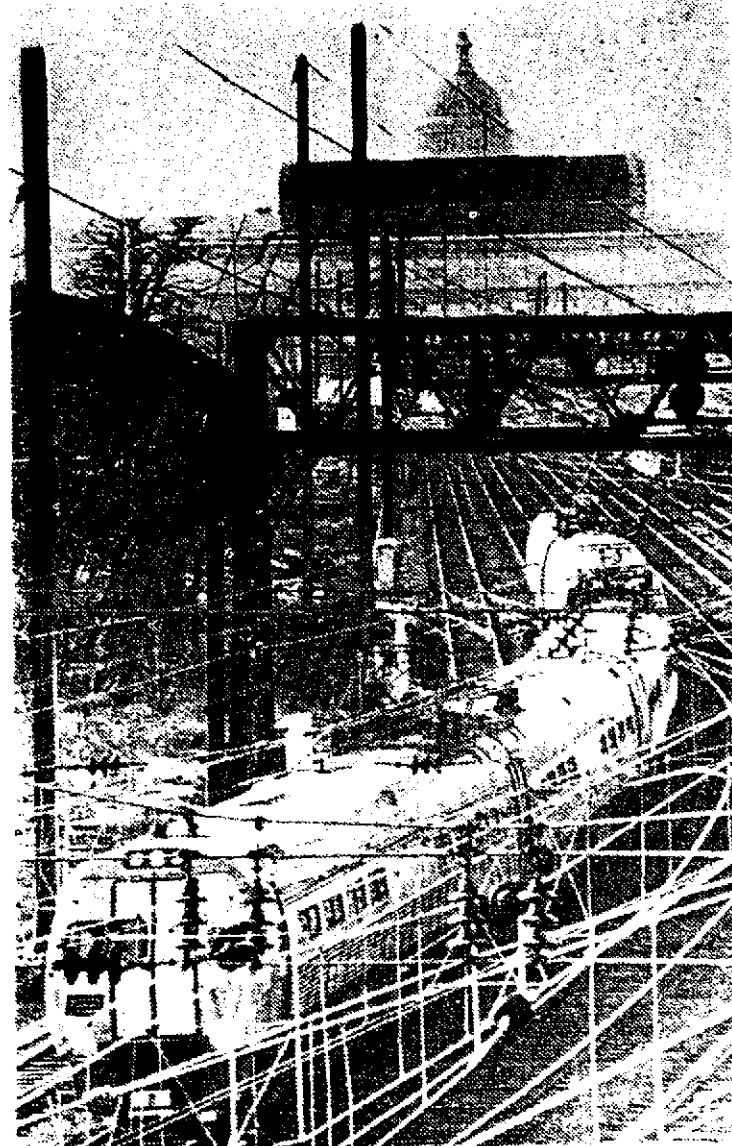

"It's sort of like raising a baby and then having to give it up," says Jeannie. "She's part of the family now, but of course she's needed as a guide dog."

The girls figure it costs about $150 of their own money to train and feed their charges until they are ready for their final steps with the guide dog organization.

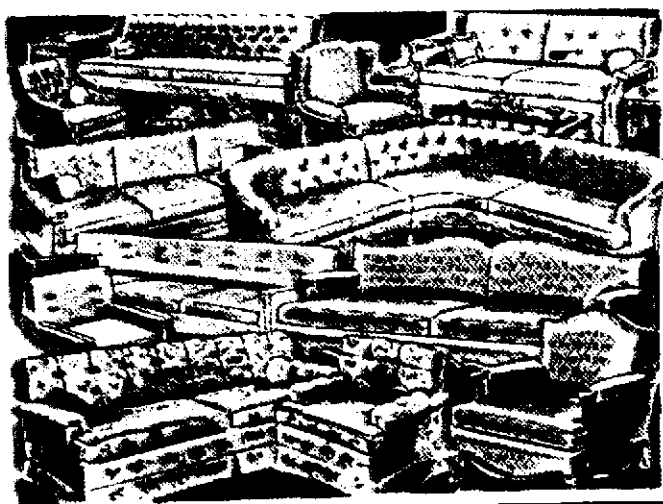

The first time that a donkey appeared as a symbol of the Democratic Party was in a cartoon published in 1870.

U. S. cuts
GI advisors
in Vietnam

BAN ME THUOT, Vietnam (UPI)—The United States today announced success in a program to cut down the number of American military advisers to South Vietnamese Army units.

Military officials announced the cutback in advisers is being extended to a second South Vietnamese division.

The number of advisers to the 11,000-man 22nd South Vietnamese infantry division was cut from 169 to 67 in November to test the reduction. In a first official report on the test, Col. Frederick Tibbets III of Steamboat Springs, Colo., the 22nd's senior adviser, told United Press International the unit suffered no loss in fighting ability.

"All three regiments of that division maintained a high level of combat for extended periods of time. Leadership, initiative and self-reliance increased," he said.

As Tibbets spoke, the joint military command today ordered a cut from 44 to 12 in the number of U.S. advisers serving with the 45th Regiment of the 3rd South Vietnamese Division.

Only a relatively small part of the 500,000 U.S. servicemen in South Vietnam serve as advisers. The bulk operate in American units. But a key allied aim, stressed as Paris war negotiations get underway, has been to train the South Vietnamese to provide their own expertise.

Storms still plague
California coastline

By United Press International Heavy rains continued to plague California today as a storm center off the Pacific Northwest coast pumped moisture-laden ocean air into the state, causing flooding in the Sierra Nevada foothills.

The Pacific storm apparently was the cause of two light plane crashes in northern California and one in Nevada, and hampered search and rescue efforts in the crash of a jetliner carrying 38 persons which went down off the Los Angeles coast.

Torrential rains triggered mudslides which closed U.S. 101 along the Oregon coast at Neskowin, Ore., Sunday.

In San Luis Obispo, Calif., one-quarter of the residents were without electricity, telephone services or water Sunday because of a storm which dumped eight inches of rain in a 15-hour period. All major downtown street were flooded and the California highway patrol ordered community of Pismo Beach closed.

The Weather Bureau forecast continued rain and high winds throughout Sunday night, decreasing today.

Another storm area, from the Great Plateau region to the northern Rockies, was producing a pattern of rain and snow. Travelers warnings were posted for Oregon, Utah, southern Idaho and eastern Nevada for heavy snow in the mountains.

To the east, in the Northern Plains area, snow mixed with freezing drizzle or sleet was creating hazardous driving conditions. The Dakotas and Minnesota were the hardest hit, with glazed surfaces to compound problems from recent heavy snows.

Marked by subzero readings, bitter cold holds sway from the eastern slopes of the northern Rockies in Montana and northern Wyoming into North Dakota and northern Minnesota.

The cold weather was in marked contrast to 60 to 70 degree temperatures in Florida. Clear skies also prevailed from lower Michigan to New England, and in Missouri and Arkansas.

In the nation's capital, the weatherman said rain was likely when Richard M. Nixon took the oath of office as president of the United States. The Weather Bureau foresaw a 60 to 70 per cent chance of rain in Washington today and tonight.

The temperature during Nixon's inaugural day was expected to reach into the low 40s, mild for Washington at this time of the year.

Temperatures at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 25 below zero at Cut Bank, Mont., to 71 at North Homestead and Miami, Fla.
